CHICAGO, Ill., Dec. 6.

COLD today, bitter north wind sweeping through Chicago's downtown canyons. But there is warmth in the merchants' hearts; cold weather means better business. "Warm underwear" is advertised in shop windows, and the wind makes Chicagoans walk faster, even, than usual.

FIVE long express trains left New York's Grand Central Station, one minute apart, Sunday afternoon, each carrying an electric sign in the rear "20th Century Limited." Equally magnificent, well run express trains left the Pennsylvania depot at the same time. Wind blew sleet along the slippery, cold tracks all through the night. All the trains rolled into Chicago Monday morning at exactly the appointed hour, the sections about one minute apart. You may call that railroading.

THE usual news of today reads "1 dead, 5 wounded in cabaret holdup." Six robbers brought four sawed off shotguns, two machine guns. Luckily three policemen off duty were relaxing in the Parody cabaret when shot guns, machine guns and holdup gentlemen appeared. For a change, bandits were shot. Policeman Charles Cohen, his wife with him, put up a particularly good fight, following the bandits into the street, where he was shot down.

SUCH things, however, are only dull routine in Chicago news. Next week Mayor Thompson gathers here mayors of 150 cities to discuss aviation, fly around over the city, and help dedicate Chicago's new airport at Sixty-third street and Cicero avenue. Visiting mayors will see the site of a greater airport to be built on Lake Michigan, ten minutes from the Loop, from Sixteenth to Thirty-first streets, at a cost of $5,000,000. The money is appropriated.

MAYOR THOMPSON'S slogan is "Make Chicago the world's greatest airport." Mayor Walker and Gov. Smith of New York, mayors and governors of other big cities and states are interested in Chicago's air doings. If cities and states don't protect themselves in the air, they won't have protection. This rich country has only small group of about 20 pursuit

COOLIDGE MESSAGE IN TABLOID FORM

Government Economy—Continue it rigorously.

Merchant Marine—Public operation unsuccessful. Government should get out of the business.

Tariff—Don't tinker with it.

Inland Navigation—Boulder dam should be authorized.

Prohibition—All citizens should obey the law; government will enforce it to best of its ability.

Coal—President should be empowered to intervene in strikes.

Railroad Consolidation—For further efficiency railroads must consolidate.

Education—Should have separate department and seat in the Cabinet.

Foreign Relations—At peace with all nations and hope to remain so.

The Negro—Should be protected by anti-lynching bill.

Muscle Shoals—Should be disposed of.

STANDS PAT ON CHIEF ISSUE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—(AP.) — President Coolidge transmitted today to a Congress seething with political conjecture a legislative message which revealed him as hewing to the line his administration has maintained on such all-important issues as farm relief, taxation, flood control, foreign relations and national defense.

Coupled with his recommendations for action by Congress on these and many other questions, the President called for a "stern self-denial" on the part of the people, so that national expenditures may be kept within bounds.

DOES NOT APPEAR

As has been his custom, Mr. Coolidge sent his message to the capitol by messenger, and it was read to each House separately by its clerks.

Standing out in the message was a reiteration that the President still stuck to his guns in opposition to the McNary-Haugen farm relief bill with its equalization fee provision, but he suggested that a Federal farm loan board, with a revolving fund, might be used to build up co-operative mar-

$1,200,000 SLUSH FUND PROPOSED BY CALLES FOR USE IN UNITED STATES

TODAY'S DISCLOSURES

Code messages exchanged between Mexico City and New York and now in possession of the Hearst newspapers are revealed today for the first time. They show conclusively that:

President Calles proposed to pay $1,200,000 in Mexican funds to certain high "personages" in the United States.

The President's confidential secretary, "Cholita" Gonzalez, is mentioned in connection with secret reports sent from New York to the Mexican capital by trusted persons in the employ of Arturo M. Elias, Mexican financial agent in New York.

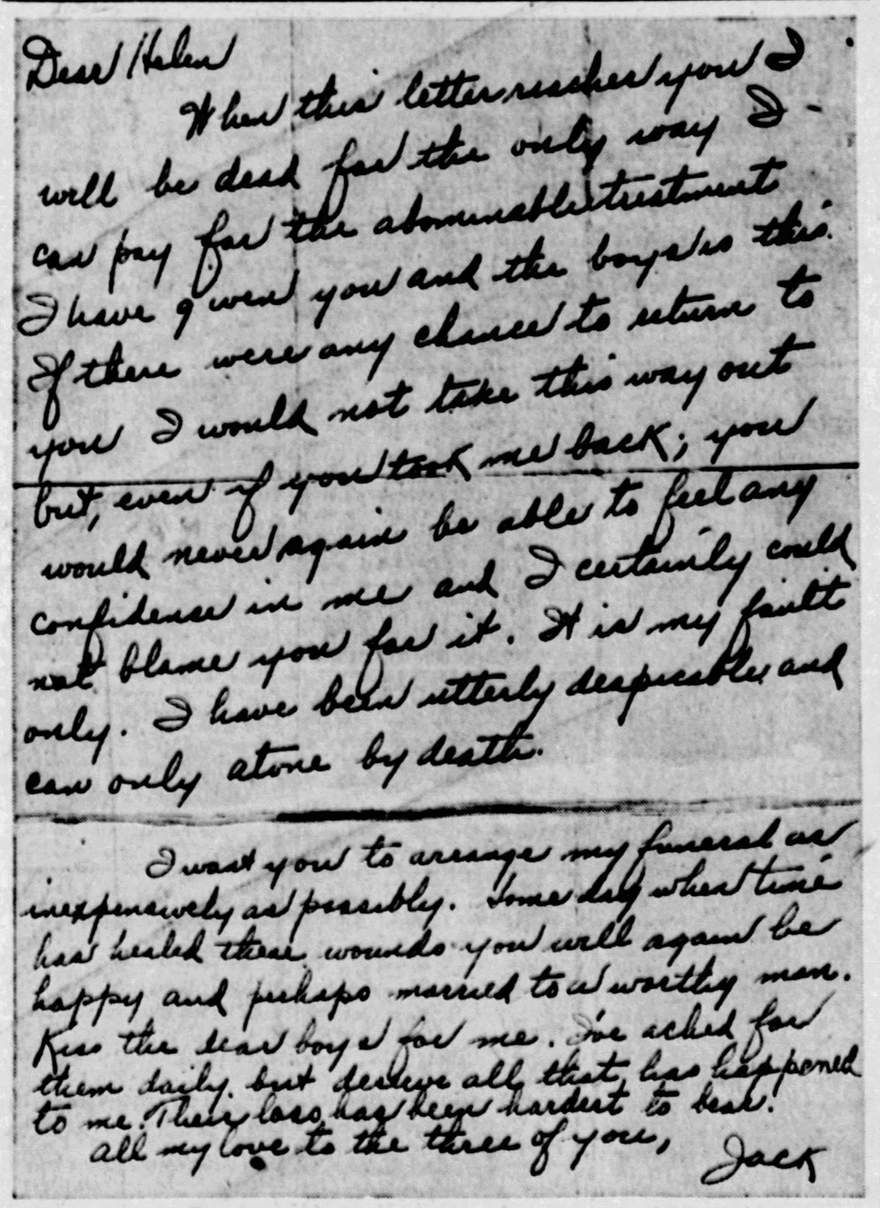
JOSEPHINE NARR

Just for a thrill, Josephine Narr, 16, of 147 Almond way, accompanied her sweetheart, F. F. Before Magistrate Orie, in Penn avenue police court, she denied all knowledge of the crimes.

Fitzpatrick's Letter to Wife



Dear Helen

When this letter reaches you I will be dead for the only way I can pay for the abominable treatment I have given you and the boys. If there were any chance to return to you I would not take this way out but, even if you take me back, you would never again be able to feel any confidence in me and I certainly could not blame you for it. It is my fault only. I have been utterly despicable and can only atone by death.

I want you to arrange my funeral as inexpensively as possible. Some day when time has healed these wounds you will again be happy and perhaps married to a worthy man. Kiss the dear boys for me. I've asked for them daily but deserve all that has happened to me. Their loss has been hardest to bear.

All my love to the three of you,

Jack

Parts of the letter written by John Fitzpatrick, missing Pitt graduate, who, police assert, deserted his wife and two children in Chicago for a clandestine romance with another woman. The letter was received by Mrs. Helen Fitzpatrick of 418 Lincoln avenue, the day before his hat and coat were found on the brink of Niagara Falls.

Urges Dry Law Observance by Officials

By Universal Service

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—If the people of the country, including the public officials sworn to enforce the law, would observe prohibition all the wet-and-dry wrangling would soon cease, President Coolidge declared today in his annual message to Congress.

Critical observers thought they saw in the President's message the nearest he ever has come to an outright approval of prohibition. He said with reference to it:

"After more than two generations of constant debate, our country adopted a system of national prohibition under all the solemnities involved in an amendment to the Federal Constitution.

"In obedience to this mandate, the Congress and the states, with one or two notable exceptions, have passed required laws for its administration and enforcement.

"This imposes upon the citizenship of the country, and especially on all public officers, not only the duty to enforce, but the obligation to observe the sanctions of this constitutional provision and its resulting laws. If this condition could be secured, all question concerning prohibition would cease."

He pledged his administration to continued active enforcement of the law.

SAW BEACH FLEEING LANE

By International News Service.

COURTHOUSE, MAYS LANDING, N. J., Dec. 6.—Sortly after the defense had rested its case in the Lilliendahl murder trial today, the prosecution created a furore of excitement in the courtroom which acted as a bombshell to the defense case when Harry S. Sanderson, state's witness, was recalled to the stand and positively identified Willis Beach, co-defendant with Mrs. Margaret Lilliendahl, as the man he saw running away from the murder scene on September 15.

Sanderson's appearance was a terrific blow to the defense, although his first appearance on the stand had been a distinct failure from the prosecution's standpoint. At that time he had been so uncertain in his identification, to the surprise of the prosecution, that the court ordered him held under surveillance.

Today Sanderson, a Sidney (O.) salesman, returned to the stand, and, after asserting that he wished to correct his former testimony, stated positively that Willis Beach, alleged illicit lover of Dr. William Lilliendahl's widow, was the man he saw running toward a blue coupe on the road from the lane where the doctor was slain.

His astounding reversal of testimony came within a few minutes after Mrs. Margaret Lilliendahl, the accused widow, had left the stand, haggard and drawn, after an hour of severe cross-examination, which left her confused and forced to answer "I don't recall."

CITY'S TAXI JOY RIDES PROBED

With a requested appropriation of $57,775 for taxicab service as its first target, council today started its drive on the budget submitted by Mayor Charles H. Kline.

Acting under orders from the lawmakers, employes of Controller John H. Henderson today began to compile a detailed report of the taxicab trips taken by city employes during 1927.

Charges that the city has been paying for trips taken for pleasure or on private business were made by members of council at the first budget session last night.

Councilman Robert J. Alderdice, declared that some departments are "running wild" in their use of cabs, said he had heard of one man whose bill totaled $127 in one month. He added that he had seen another city employe, who was not on duty at the time, use a taxicab at city expense Sunday night. Councilman Daniel Winters volunteered the information that another employe had used a taxicab to go to Sandy Creek and back.

"Why didn't he use a train?" asked Winters, "I don't see why they don't use the street cars. They could buy a pass for $1.50."

In the course of the meeting it developed that part of the taxicab bills have been paid out of bond issue money.

"Are we going to pay interest for 20 or 30 years for taxi rides?" demanded Councilman W. Y. English hastily, subsiding only when Councilman Robert Garland pointed out that such expenditure had been authorized by council several weeks ago.

A financial report submitted by the controller brought out the fact that the Mayor's budget, unless pruned, will require an even greater increase in taxes than first estimated. The Mayor figured an increase of 3 mills on land and 1.5 mills on buildings. The controller placed the increase at 3.46 mills on land and 1.73 mills on buildings, which make the total 1928 tax 25.5 mills and 12.75 mills.

Today

planes located at Detroit. Hostile bombing machines could wipe out the principal buildings in New York or Chicago, and choke half the inhabitants with gas, before our little air defense could arrive from Detroit.

ITALY isn't as big or rich as this country, but the King and Mussolini at the aviation camp in the province of Udine recently saw 500 swift fighting planes rising into the air at once. That's aviation defense. Ours is an aviation joke.

HERE in Chicago they fly, and mean to do more flying. Charles C. Dawes, nephew of the Vice President, energetic young Chicago financier, wanted to inspect Texas oil lands in a hurry. He flew about one thousand miles to Gainesville, near Dallas, Tex., taking three friends, with Capt. Berry and his mechanic running a Wright whirlwind single engine monoplane. They left Saturday morning, looked over the oil properties on Sunday, started back Monday morning, reached Chicago in time for luncheon the same day, flying 165 miles an hour. Chicago men value their time.

MANY men in Chicago think Vice President Dawes will be nominated to succeed President Coolidge, and want to bet on it. He is much liked in Illinois, and in Indiana. Henry Ford, not unlike President Coolidge in his ways of thinking and talking, says "President Coolidge will not run again. He made himself at least quite clear to me when he said he didn't choose to run. We used that expression when I was a boy, and the President means just what he meant."

IN STATE STREET, crowded with Christmas shoppers, the biggest crowd blocking sidewalk and street, stood looking at something that they can't buy for the present, the new Ford car.

It is believed here and elsewhere that General Motors Company plans a car and an advertising campaign, to offset and if possible discount the terrific success of the Ford campaign.

MEN that understand automobile manufacturing say Henry Ford cannot make a dollar profit on his new car until he reaches a production of at least 5,000 cars a day. He will soon introduce to the public his new two-ton heavier truck, which will carry five or six tons on level ground, four tons uphill, and sell far under $1,000. As Mr. Patrick Francis Murphy said long ago, "To stay where you are in the United States, you have to keep moving."

fessed to participating in nine holdups "merely for a thrill."

The girl is Josephine Narr of 147 Almond way. She was taken into custody at her home following the alleged confession of one of the gangsters, who were captured following a running gun battle extending down East Ohio street to Lawrenceville. Automobile Detective James McInerney saw two men in a machine he recognized as the car used in nine holdups last night and early this morning.

He exchanged shots with the men as he pursued the machine across the Fortieth Street Bridge and trailed it to a restaurant at 3516 Butler street. He entered the restaurant, closely followed by several other detectives, and the two men supposed to have been in the car were arrested with the proprietor and another man. The two said to have been in the car are Albert Collett, 23, and his brother, Anthony, 25, both of 3619 Charlotte street. The restaurant proprietor is Joseph Cooper, 25, of 3619 Charlotte street, and the other man is A. Santek, 24, of 3428 Butler street. The Collett brothers are said to have implicated the Narr girl and her alleged sweetheart, F. F. Boyle, 22, of 329 Georgia street, the fourth member of the "gang," who was arrested at his home.

At a hearing this morning before Magistrate John Orie in the Penn Avenue Police Station, all were held over for further investigation. Each denied participation in the robberies, but jewelry and weapons taken from the men were held as evidence.

The suspects were taken to city detectives headquarters this afternoon, where each was subject to a severe grilling and inspection by victims of holdups during the past two weeks.

One man identified the prisoners as the gang which held him up in Stanton avenue 10 days ago. He is Stanley Boettner, of Hawthorne street.

BANDIT GANG SUSPECTS JAILED

ALLEGED AUTO HOLDUP GANGSTERS ARRAIGNED

Said by police to be the automobile gangsters who have slugged and robbed pedestrians in virtually every section of the city during the past two weeks, three men and a girl were arrested early today by city detectives. The owner of a Butler street restaurant in which two of them were apprehended and a customer was arrested as a material witness. Left to right are those jailed as they appeared before Magistrate John Orie: E. A. Santek, the restaurant patron, Albert Collett, F. F. Boyle, Joseph Cooper, the restaurant proprietor, Anthony Collett and Josephine Narr. Boyle and the Collett brothers used Josephine as a lure with which to draw victims to their parked car, police alleged. All of the prisoners denied any connection with the robberies and Magistrate Orie ordered them held for further investigation.

Brandon to Aid Neediest

Magistrate A. D. Brandon, whose work in Morals Court brings him in daily contact woth poverty and suffering, who is familiar with conditions among the poor and knows what must be done to relieve their distress, has indorsed the Sun-Telegraph's campaign to raise a Christmas fund for the Twenty Neediest Case of destitution in Pittsburgh. He indorsed it in practical way, by starting a collection for the fund.

Magistrate Brandon requested attorneys and other well-known visitors to his court to contribute to the fund. The gifts today gave a nucleus around which it is expected daily additions will grow until Christmas, when the sum will be turned over for distribution among the charitable societies that have reported the cases.

Magistrate Brandon sees parade before him in Morals Court every morning much of the misery and vice and crime of the city. Not infrequently it results from indigence. A mother with a large number of children cannot look after them properly if she has to be the wage earner of the family and go out to work every day; and so they are liable to get into mischief. Thus the worst results of extreme poverty are frequently seen in Morals Court. Magistrate Brandon's indorsement of the campaign to help the Twenty Neediest Cases may be taken as a testimonial from one of the best informed sources.

The Christmas spirit has definitely entered into the drive, and from now on should be reflected in more numerous contributions. It would be a good plan for offices, shops and factories to provide receptacles in which bills and coins may be deposited for the Twenty Neediest Cases. If rivalry should enter the campaign, competition to see which office or mill or store give most liberally, the donors would enjoy it the more and the recipients of the gifts would benefit correspondingly.

The Twenty Neediest Cases represent acute poverty, due to no fault of the victims but to circumstances over which they had no control—sickness, accident, the desertion of the breadwinner, insanity and the like. The details of some of these cases are touching in the extreme; a recital of them would melt hard hearts. But pity and sympathy, if they are to help the unhappy persons for whom this appeal is made, must be expressed not merely by words but with gifts of money with which to provide the food, clothing, shelter, medical attention and medicine that are so urgently required.

The Twenty Neediest Cases have been reported by the Associated Charities, the Catholic Charities of the Diocese of Pittsburgh, the Pittsburgh Association for the Improvement of the Poor, the Salvation Army and the Volunteers of America. Checks and money orders should be made payable to the "Twenty Neediest Cases Fund" and sent to The Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pa., or, if preferred, to one of the societies named.

CASE No. 9

All of the 20 cases were described in The Sunday Sun-Telegraph of November 27. One cases will be repeated each day. Here is case No. 9:

Eleven years ago two young people met at a picnic; there followed a courtship under the watchful eye of the girl's wise mother. Against her mother's advice, Mrs. P. married Mr. P. because she believed in him and loved him. Even after several years of mistreatment at his hands she forgave him. But disillusionment came at last when many months ago he deserted her after appropriating some of his employer's money. He has not been located.

Mrs. P. finds herself with five children, one a baby of two months; she has no income, she is eager to work but is unable to do so without sacrificing the welfare of her children; her friends and relatives help when they can, which is infrequently.

Not only her life, but the lives of all her children, will be lives of complete disillusionment unless food, clothing and shelter are supplied.

(Reported by the Catholic Charities of the Diocese of Pittsburgh).

Case No. 10 will be described tomorrow.

keting and aid in disposing of the nation's surplus crops.

Likewise, Mr. Coolidge again pledged his complete support to Secretary Mellon's tax plans and took occasion to warn the makers of the tax laws against "special interests, too often selfish, always uninformed of the national needs as a whole, with hired agents using their proposed beneficiaries as engines of propaganda."

Expansion of the Navy, development of the merchant marine, Mississippi flood control legislation, Boulder Canyon dam legislation, disposition of the Muscle Shoals problem, a railroad consolidation measure, waterways development and strict prohibition enforcement all were recommended by the President.

DEFENDS FOREIGN POLICY

In addition he entered a strong defense of the foreign policies of the United States, with especial reference to Central American and Chinese affairs.

He recommended that flood control be confined this year to the lower Mississippi River, with provision for adequate dikes, emergency spillways and aides to navigation; cautioned that this problem should be met by viewing it as a separate, national question without attempts to link it with other proposals for river control and expansion; and suggested that the people enjoying the benefits of land reclaimed by government-built dikes share a partial, although perhaps lighter burden of its expense.

Contending that the country had attained a prosperity never exceeded and therefore was in a position to enjoy some of the benefits which result from economy, Mr. Coolidge presented the spectre, nevertheless, of a large national debt and warned that the revenues now directed toward its reduction could be diverted to internal improvements and national development, the people must continue to sacrifice and the government must continue to economize.

"The Secretary of the Treasury," the President said, "has recommended a measure which would give us a much better balanced system of taxation and without oppression produce sufficient revenue. It has my complete support."

The President reiterated his belief in a high protective tariff, declaring that any reduction of the levies would work a hardship on industry and agriculture alike.

Although but one paragraph of his message was devoted to prohibition, the President emphasized the need for both the people and public officials to "observe the sanctions of this constitutional provision and its resulting laws."

INSISTS SHE 'MEANT NO HARM'

"My Josephine is a good girl. Those no-good fellows made her sit in the automobile while they robbed and she told me all about it on Saturday," Mrs. Joseph Narr, mother of the girl bandit suspect, declared this morning in defense of her daughter, Josephine Narr, 16, 147 Almond way, said to be implicated in "siren" robberies staged in the city the past few nights.

And Mrs. Narr's contentions were supported by her young son, Frank, 15, who insisted his sister was in bed by 1 o'clock Saturday morning when she was supposed to be participating in the holdup.

AFRAID TO TELL

"Josephine told me all about Friday night when she came home from work Saturday afternoon," Mrs. Narr asserted. "I said to her, 'Tell the police,' but she said, 'No, they will beat me if I do,' and then I told her to keep away from those fellows.

"On Sunday afternoon they came for her, but I would not let her go with them, and then Sunday night she went to a party, but came home early. She was in bed by 11 o'clock Sunday.

"Last night she told me she was going to another party and I told her to come home early. I knew she would get into trouble when she went with those bad fellows . . . Now I don't know what to do. She did not mean to do harm," the mother sobbed.

Estep Put On Ways, Means

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—Representative Harry A. Estep (Rep.) of Pennsylvania has been assigned to the House Ways and Means Committee by the Republican caucus, despite vigorous protest of Westerners against another Easterner landing on this major committee.

The Committee on Committees recommended that Estep be appointed to fill one of the vacancies on Ways and Means. A special Republican caucus was called to consider this action.

Representative Newton (Rep.), of Minnesota, and others fought the naming of Estep, on the ground that it was against precedent for a first-year member of Congress to be appointed to such an important committee.

Argument was advanced that Pennsylvania already had representation on the committee: that 12 of the committee chairmanships in the last Congress were held by that state, and the West wanted the Ways and Means seat.

Representative James T. Begg (Rep.), of Ohio, urged that Estep be given the Ways and Means seat.

NEW CASTLE, Pa., Dec. 6—Buildings in all parts of the city were rocked, windows were broken in the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad offices and restaurant at New Castle Junction, and general alarm was caused last night by a terrific explosion, the scene of which could not be determined for more than an hour.

It was finally found to have been at the slag fill of the Shenango Valley Improvement Company, at New Castle Junction, probably a half-mile from the Baltimore and Ohio offices.

$2,000,000 WILLED BY WOODS

The will of Edward A. Woods, accepted for probate today, disposes of more than $2,000,000. To his widow the president of the Edward A. Woods Company left his estate of more than $1,000,000, and, as beneficiaries of insurance policies aggregating $1,050,000, he named his two children, mother, sister, brothers and Princeton University.

An unusual document, the will provided that the fortune remain in the Woods name for at least three generations. The estate was left in trust for the duration of her life to the widow, Gertrude Macrum Woods, after which it shall pass to the two children, Edward Wallis Woods, of Edgeworth, and Mrs. Margaret Woods Robinson, of Cleveland, O. At their death, the estate is to be divided among their grandchildren, who now, number five.

As a separate bequest, Mr. Woods set aside educational funds of $5,000 for each grandchild.

One hundred dollars for each year of service was left to each of the servants in the Woods home at Sewickley.

The Sewickley Trust Company was named custodian of a trust fund, maintained by insurance, from which will come annual prizes for the best essay on Pittsburgh history by a student at Sewickley High School.

Voting power of his stock in the Edward A. Woods Company was entrusted to a brother, Charles A. Woods, and William M. Duff, vice-president of the company.

Mr. Woods explained the absence of bequests to charity with instructions to his widow to continue support of the charities in which they were interested.

Division of the insurance bequests, which includes a gift to Mr. Woods' alma mater, Princeton University, was not divulged in the will. The Peoples Savings and Trust Company was named sole executor.

Sunday, the President, out on one of the big ranches where we were entertained, went into the bull ring himself, and fought the bull. They had no weapons, and didn't hurt the bull. He tried to get me to go in, but the bull was still armed, so I stayed in the grandstand. It was bull fighting that would have pleased the Americans. $70,000 FOR COOK FOREST

FUND STILL INCOMPLETE

Cook forest, an 8,200-acre tract in Clarion, Jefferson and Forest counties, contains the largest remaining stand of virgin white pine. A drive to obtain the $200,000 necessary to complete its purchase as a state park is still $70,000 short. The purchase price is $650,000. Of this the legislature has provided $450,000 and $130,000 of the remainder has been raised by a canvassing committee, which hopes through small contributions to complete its quota by Christmas.

LAWYER IN DRY CASE SUES

Alfred Van Buren, an attorney, 16 East Forty-third street, New York, has entered suit in Common Pleas Court for $1,725.94 against Thomas J. Jarvis and John G. Allen, doing business as the Chatauqua Brewing Company, for counsel fees and expenses incurred in defending Jarvis and Allen in criminal cases growing out of alleged violation of the prohibition law, search and seizure proceedings and securing permit privileges for dealcoholizing beer, in the United States courts for the Western District of New York, during May and July of 1926. Allen is now a resident of Pittsburgh.

IDEAL FOR CANOEISTS

Cook forest extends along the Clarion river for seven miles. The stream winds through hills towering from 400 to 600 feet above it. Great rocks of grotesque shape are found in some places. The valley is scenically one of the most attractive in the eastern part of the United States. Trout streams of clear, cold water, dashing through romantic glens where ferns and rhododendron grow in profusion, add to the beauty.

WOMEN'S CLUBS' GIFTS

TWO FRIENDS OF THE TOY MISSION

Mrs. W. F. Cooley, committee chairman, left, and Mrs. Carl E. Coslowsky, president, of the Congress of Women's Clubs, selecting gifts of toys for children among poor families in Pittsburgh.

MRS. CARL E. COSLOWSKY

President of the Congress of Clubs and Club Women of Western Pennsylvania indorses work of Toy Mission and the Sun-Tele Auxiliary and invites all club women to join with donations.

Clubs Spread Joy in Toy Mission Work

The co-operation of the Congress of Clubs and Club Women of Western Pennsylvania with the Toy Mission and The Sun-Tele Auxiliary is fortunate for thousands of boys and girls in Pittsburgh whose Christmas is to be made happier through the enthusiastic assistance of the women's clubs. Through gifts of toys and books and the dressing of dolls the club women are among the most generous and practical friends of the Toy Mission.

"The Toy Mission is distinctly a Pittsburgh institution and we all take pride in its fine record in providing toys for the children in the poorer families of the city," said Mrs. Carl E. Coslowsky, president of the Congress. "The women in our clubs give it whole-hearted indorsement and all who are able render valuable assistance in making donations, obtaining gifts of toys from their friends and in dressing dolls. Practically all our clubs are co-operating."

"This is certain to be a joyous Christmas for every woman who helps the Toy Mission," said Mrs. W. F. Cooley, chairman of the public affairs committee of the Congress of Clubs, in direct charge of the work. "Letters have been sent to the various clubs and we shall have the assistance of several thousand women in collecting gifts of discarded toys and books and in dressing dolls. At the same time these women are themselves among the most generous donors. Clubwomen who assist the Toy Mission have the satisfaction of knowing that every gift made goes to the children in a deserving family."

Thousands of toys and books have been collected through the Sun-Tele Auxiliary and other sources. Trolley car conductors on all Pittsburgh Railways Company lines will accept packages for the Toy Mission. Donors may give packages to conductors on their trips downtown or the carmen will stop for a package when the giver hails the car. Packages are stored at the carbarns and delivered to the Mission in bulk.

At the same time gifts may be left with any Sun-Tele office or agency listed below.

EXPOSE BLOCKS LOAN

By Universal Service

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—The alleged intrigue between Japan and Mexico is responsible for the failure of the $30,000,000 loan for the South Manchurian Railroad, it has been learned in a high official quarter.

The money was to be expended for the purpose of developing the Japanese-owned railroad in China. It was to give the Japanese government almost complete control of that valuable province.

The loan was proposed and half way negotiated through the Morgan interests following a visit of Thomas W. Lamont to the Orient. Whether the collapse of the loan has anything to do with the presence in Mexico of Dwight Morrow, of the same firm, as ambassador to that country, none would officially state.

In private, however, diplomatists agreed that the publication in the Hearst newspapers of secret agreements between Japan and Mexico had halted the loan.

Romance

R. K. HALLIBURTON

At 21, six years ago, he graduated from Princeton, three years later he had found most of the poetic corners of a prosaic world, fighting and living his way without a penny in his pocket, from one romantic adventure to another. This daring young romanticist set the literary world on fire with his first book, "The Royal Road to Romance." His second volume, "The Glorious Adventure," just off the press, bids fair to surpass the unprecedented success of the "Royal Road to Romance." He will lecture on his travels at Carnegie Music Hall Thursday night.

HELP HER ALONG!

Baby Shirley looks blithely out on a grim old world, ready to meet anybody halfway, particularly the nurse who smiled at her while the photographer "made ready" to snap her in this fetching pose.

"HERE I AM AGAIN"

JUST COULDN'T WAIT UP

Well, well, here's Miss Rose Datz, eighteen months, caught napping, "because," she said, as she went off with the sandman, "that photographer is so slow."

GLASS TARIFF TALKED HERE

Rehabilitation of the glass factories in Belgium and Northern France and the exportation of their low-priced product has resulted in competition keenly felt by the industry in America. To protect the trade in this country the question of a readjustment of the tariff on glass has arisen among manufacturers here and is the principal topic at the thirteenth annual meeting of the National Glass Distributors' Association in session at the William Penn Hotel.

Two hundred delegates representing the plate, rolled and window glass industries are attending. D. H. Statteman of Cincinnati, president of the association, presided at a meeting of the executive committee today and a dinner will be held tonight.

Is She Bandit Queen, Or Poor, Little Flapper?

By ALMA SIOUX SCARBERRY

Cool as a cucumber, as she looks you straight in the eyes and tells the ins and outs of what she calls "dirty work," 16-year-old Josephine Nierodinska (Narr), alleged bandit queen, is a study—and a puzzling one.

Calmly and with no show of emotion, her brown eyes free from tears or fear, she sat in detective headquarters where she was taken with four members of a bandit gang and admitted watching "five or six stickups" in a thrilling night of gun play and robbery. Josephine, who works in a wool factory on the North Side, and lives at 147 Almond way, says this is how it all came about.

Friday night she was walking along the street at Thirty-eighth and Butler streets when she was called over to a car by one of the boys. One of them was a fellow by the name of "Tommy" whom she had seen before. The others were "Tony" and Albert.

"Can't you get a couple of girls and go out on a party," suggested Tommy."

Josephine says she tried and couldn't. So one of them was struck suddenly with the bright idea!

"Let's take her out and show her some dirty work."

When she was told it would be the thrill of her life, Josephine says she agreed to go—wondering what it was all about. Then she learned first hand what "dirty work was."

IN HER OWN WORDS

"They would drive up along the street, make a man come into the car by sticking a gun into his ribs, then take all he had and shove him out."

Josephine says she isn't sure whether there were five or six holdups, but declares she was "too surprised to do anything but look."

"Weren't you afraid of the guns and blackjacks?" the cool little flapper was questioned.

But Josephine just shrugged and replied:

"Well, they didn't go off."

Her part of the loot was an expensive wrist watch taken from one of the victims and given her by "Tony." She admits this and says:

"I didn't know why I took it when I knew it was 'hot stuff.' I just wanted it because I'd never had a watch."

"Hot stuff," for your own enlightenment, is stickup lingo for stolen goods.

Josephine had a combination sandwich in a restaurant with her thrilling boy friends before going to her home. Her life story is rather simple.

Born in Pittsburgh of poor Polish parents, the little girl left school at 14 and went out to help support the family when her father was ill. There are four brothers and two sisters. One brother is in the Western Penitentiary now, according to police, and another has just served a term.

Detectives describe her father and mother as:

"Just the salt of the earth. Nice hard-working Polish folks."

Josephine herself showed a little emotion when asked if she had a good father and mother. Her head dropped.

"Nobody ever had a better ma and pa than I got."

Detectives are grilling her to find whether she actually had anything to do with luring the victims into the car. They feel they may get more information from Josephine when they get a little more from her boy friends.

She is a petite youngster with wide staring brown eyes, sallow skin and straight brown hair.

Is she a bandit queen? Or just a poor little flapper who went out for a night's thrill? What price a wrist watch and a combination sandwich? Jail bars and disgrace.

Neighbors Said — — Because She Complained So Much.

ONE DAY it was headaches, next day stomach troubled. And she used to be so good-looking. What a miserable life! The fact was she had many symptoms of System-Poisoning—professionally called "TOXEMIA"—and didn't know it!

There are thousands like her. When people feel constipated and nerves on edge, they take ordinary laxative pills and waters that fail to eliminate the poison wastes which develop dangerous bacteria in the intestines. That's why so many suffer. But just let such people take PARTOLA, the pleasant internal antiseptic and laxative, then watch those symptoms disappear! FUNNY FOLKS BOOK TICKLES THE ADULTS, TOO

69 CENTS GIFTS ARE GOING FAST

Prominent among many bundles to repose in the Christmas stocking this year will be "All the Funny Folks," master story of the newspaper celebrities of the nation.

From hundreds of counters, downtown news stands, every Sun-Telegraph newsdealer's store, people of the tri-state district are carrying thousands of them home.

With its jingles written primarily for children, it is only traditional that adults read and enjoy the book, too. Jack Lait, well-known author, wrote the story of these amiable cartoon folks, while 100 illustrations in full colors are scattered through the volume's 112 pages.

The book only costs 69 cents, and is within everyone's reach. It has no advertising in it that might permanently mark the book as an advertising stunt—for it is not that. To look is to buy.

While dealers are scattered over the district so thoroughly that there is almost one in every neighborhood, the "All the Funny Folks" department of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph will be glad to accept orders and send the books. Clip out the coupon, after following instruction in the advertisement elsewhere in this paper. Note how many wanted and make the check, money order, and small denomination stamps correspond.

A REVOLUTIONARY STEP
In Our Apparel Business!

The winter of 1927 was not the winter of 1908 or even 1926—and the Merchandising Methods used then are not sensational enough to level the mountain of coats Frank & Seder has on its selling floors and stock rooms NOW. Therefore

Beginning Tomorrow We Offer
$150,000 Stock Women's & Misses' CLOTH COATS and FUR COATS

A Cash Loss to Us of More Than $50,000

This is the most drastic mark-down we have ever found it necessary to take on coats in the early part of December. Our coat business has not been good. Some say it is because the weather has been so warm. Others think that women are not spending their money so freely, and that they will not pay the price. We cannot find much consolation in excuses. We only know that we have enough fur coats and cloth coats in our store today to completely stock two or three average large stores at the beginning of a season.

1/3 OFF

We Are Not Offering "Sale Merchandise"

Here you have the cream of our regular assortments, not special merchandise bought for a sale. And the enormous selections are offered you at a Third Off today's low prices.

It's Simply Up to Us to Sell Them

Arthur Brisbane says that when Henry Ford advertises he ADVERTISES. And we might add that when Frank & Seder make up their mind to sell coats they SELL COATS, regardless of what it costs us to sell them.

You say the weather hasn't been cold enough? The weather is cold enough now! You say the price hasn't been right? The price is surely right now!

So here you have both the weather and the price you have been waiting for. There remains now no excuse for any woman who wants to buy a fine new cloth or fur coat at the most sensational saving ever quoted before Christmas.

This Is Important for You to Read

While we do not offer you choice of every cloth or fur coat in the house, we DO give you choice of over $150,000 worth of garments, as many as you will find in most coat departments at the beginning of the season.

Our Salespeople Will Be Surprised

Do you know that when our own selling force reads this ad it will be the first information they will have of this sensational reduction, and they will be just as surprised as the public at this drastic step.

This Is An Emergency Sale!

We reserve the right to withdraw these coats from sale at these reduced prices without notice because the loss we are taking is a big one. We planned this sale as an emergency measure, to reduce our stocks—and when the emergency has passed and the stocks are back to normal we will immediately discontinue this offer.

If you are in need of a new fur or cloth coat, and fail to take advantage of the saving we now offer you, then you should cease complaining of high prices for all time.

Fashions, Styles, Furs in Endless Assortments

Cloth coats modishly fashioned to express the most recent vogue; created from rich, dependable fabrics in the correct colors; lavishly trimmed with handsome, luxurious furs. Coats that are out-of-the-ordinary because of their deft designing — their suitability, whether of the sports or dress type—their extremely careful attention to detail, beautiful linings and workmanship throughout. Sizes for women, misses and larger women.

Fur coats of rare beauty and distinction, developed of exquisite pelts, marvelously and intricately worked to display their beauty to full advantage. Harmonious trimmings. Sizes for misses, women and larger women.

CALLES PROPOSED $1,200,000 SLUSH FUND

and the Mexican War Department were mentioned as the recipients of the mysterious trunks and documents.

All of the above developments were referred to in code messages cabled between Executive headquarters in Mexico City and Elias' office in New York City. The code messages and Spanish translation are in the possession of the Hearst newspapers.

Calles "In Know"

President Calles, himself, was cognizant of the negotiations being carried on in the United States with important "personages," for in one code message he expressed himself as extremely anxious to protect the men with whom Elias reported he was negotiating. The Mexican executive, therefore, ordered that the operation be conducted with the utmost secrecy, "in order to protect the said personages from future attacks of their enemies."

The payment of the $1,200,000, according to a code message from Elias to Calles, appears to have been contingent upon a certain "agreement" with Manual C. Telles, Mexican Ambassador to the United States.

Other code messages refer to the sending of documents, the trunks and a copy of the Telles agreement by personal messenger, "Haberman," and "Lionel Dalcowithz," both Americans.

The exceedingly industrious Financial Agent, Senor Elias, cabled President Calles on July 1, 1926, that Dalcowithz was leaving on that date with two trunks, intended for the Mexican War Department and "Cholita" Gonzales, the Mexican Executive's private secretary. Elias requested that these trunks should not be examined by customs officials at the border.

Debt Subterfuge

The Calles telegram, informing his half-brother Elias that he had that day ordered the transfer to the Mexican Financial Agency in New York of the $1,200,000 for the proposed payment to prominent Americans, was dated July 7, 1926. Calles stated that the funds would be transferred "apparently as a payment on the foreign debt," in order not to excite Yankee curiosity. It was in this code message Calles directed that all precautions should be taken to protect the "said personages" to whom Elias proposed to pay this money.

The message, decoded and translated, follows:

Mexico, D. F.,
July 7, 1926.
12563

Arturo M. Elias,
Financial Agent of Mexico,
New York, N. Y.

Your telegram of the sixth and letter of the first. I am ordering Treasury Department transfer you one million two hundred thousand dollars, apparently as a payment on the debt, in order that you may apply it to personages indicated in your letter, conducting the operation secretly in order to protect the said personages from future attacks of their enemies. Affectionate salutations.

The President of the Republic,
P. ELIAS CALLES.

Treasury Hard Up

The Mexican Treasury was in pretty hard shape at that time and Alberto J. Pani, the head of the Treasury Department, was opposed to the payment of large sums for the accomplishment of the various "secret purposes" of Calles and Elias. A delay in the transfer of the $1,200,000 desired by Elias in New York is indicated in a code message which Calles sent Elias on July 17, 1926, ten days later than the one already quoted. This second code message also is in the possession of the Hearst papers. Decoded and translated, it follows:

Mexico, D. F.,
July 17, 1926.

Citizen Arturo M. Elias,
Consul General of Mexico,
New York, N. Y.

Personal code. Communicate to you for your knowledge that today the Citizen Treasurer General of the Nation ordered the Bank of Mexico to direct its New York correspondent to place at your disposition the sum of one million two hundred thousand dollars, which covers the debt indicated in your letter of the first. I salute you affectionately.

P. Elias Calles.

RRLL/Abreviated code.

A further delay of 19 days ensued. On August 5, 1926, President Calles again cabled Elias in code, apparently in answer to a message from his half-brother, complaining of the non-receipt of the money. Perhaps Pani was still blocking the deal, though the Calles message attributed the delay to the Mexican Government's New York banking representatives. The text of this message follows:

Mexico, D. F.,
August 5, 1926.

Citizen Arturo M. Elias,
Consul General of Mexico,
New York, N. Y.

Your code of yesterday. I understand that the cause of the delay in the delivery of funds is due to bank correspondent of the Bank of Mexico in New York, to which was sent orders for the delivery of one million two hundred thousand dollars to you, under date 17 of the past month. I am ordering Treasury Department to repeat the orders via telegraph. Advise whether they make delivery. Affectionate salutations.

P. E. Calles.

RLL.

Mysterious Object

The foregoing message was dated August 5, a month and three days later than the first telegraphic request of Elias that the funds be transferred to him in New York "quickest possible." In this request Elias indicated that the funds were needed for the fulfillment of a mysterious "agreement with Tellez." It follows, textually:

New York, N. Y.,
July 2, 1926.

Senor Plutarco Elias Calles,
Presidency of the Republic,
Mexico, D. F.

I refer to my letter of June 23. I am sending with Haberman report upon agreement with Tellez. Urgent you issue orders Treasury General that funds transferred here quickest possible.

Arturo.

The Elias code message asking President Calles to pass Lionel Dalcowithz, an American commercial representative, across the Mexican border with two unexamined trunks, also is in the hands of the Hearst papers. It refers to Dalcowithz as an "envoy" carrying an "important document." Decoded and translated, this message follows:

New York, N. Y.,
July 1, 1926.

Senor Plutarco Elias Calles,
President of the Republic,
Mexico, D. F.

Lionel Dalcowithz is leaving today for Mexico City carrying important document and two trunks for War Department and Cholita Gonzales (Siedad Ganzales, private secretary of President Calles. "Cholita" is the diminutive of "Soledad.") I beg you order customs office at Laredo not to examine his equipage and to give every facility to envoy on his passage of the frontier. Affectionate salutations.

Arturo.

Appeal to Saenz

Senor Elias also called Aaron Saenz, Mexican Minister of Foreign Relations, urging that he use his influence to expedite the transfer of the funds necessary for a satisfactory termination of the "business" he said he was negotiating in New York. The text follows:

ARE YOU a "TOXIC"

Those Dizzy Spells

They're something to take seriously—those dizzy spells and floating specks. They usually indicate a serious poisoned condition of the system which may end in kidney or heart trouble and high blood pressure. It all starts with our abnormal living habits, which put too great a strain upon the vital organs, especially the liver. The liver becoming "limp" or sluggish fails to cleanse the blood of toxic poisons formed in food waste. Then a toxic condition of the system which results in serious diseases of the blood, heart and blood vessels.

It is agreed that occasionally the liver needs a little help. Nothing better for this, as medical men have found, than a little ox gall. Ox gall is a remarkable natural stimulant for the human liver, renewing and restoring it so that it can properly perform its function of purifying the blood and keeping the system clean and wholesome. But you want to be certain of getting the genuine ox gall. This is assured by asking for Dioxol tablets, each of which represents 10 drops of pure ox gall in dainty and tasteless form. Dioxol tablets come in a plainly marked package and cost less than 2c each—at good druggists.

To see children's eyes brighten with pleasure, set Muffets before them at the breakfast table!

For every Muffet speaks its own invitation. Light as a crumpet! Its butternut-browned, crinkly round top is a visible promise of crunchy crispness. Even before you taste the first spoonful, you can almost feel it crumble in your mouth!

So good for children, too! Whole wheat, cooked, drawn to a ribbon of filmy thinness, wound layer upon layer to muffin size and shape, baked, toasted. Vitamins, calories, bran. Easy digestibility.

Serve Muffets tomorrow, plain with cream and sugar, or with fruit, fresh, stewed or preserved. And watch the children's delight!

Speaker

HOWARD HEINZ
Mr. Heinz was the Chamber of Commerce luncheon speaker today.

HEINZ PROGRESS OUTLINED BY PRESIDENT

The growth of the H. J. Heinz Company and the importance of food production in Pittsburgh was outlined by Howard Heinz, president of the company at the noon luncheon of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce today. His address is one of a series on industries and institutions that contribute to the city's fame.

Mr. Heinz paid tribute to Pittsburgh for the advantages it offers to all industrial enterprises. He said its spirit of progress is more dominant now than in previous years and that its past success is an indication of its future. The subject of the address was "Food Preserving."

He said in part:

"I am called upon to discuss a specific company and its part in an industry that has been almost revolutionary in its effect upon home life. I am timid in approaching this subject because of a fear that in discussing the work of the founder of this enterprise I may appear fulsome, and in describing the development, you may assume that I am boastful. I am neither. It is my aim to point to the possible development of our city by drawing a verbal picture of what has been done here by those that we might follow.

"It has been rightly said that food preparation and preservation form one of the country's prime industries. The most important science in the world is food chemistry, for without proper food we could not live and a nation's health is dependent upon its dietetics. The Civil War awakened thoughts of food preservation in the minds of many, for within a few years after the conflict the preserving industry rapidly expanded.

"My father, who founded the business in Sharpsburg when he was 25, met many obstacles, but his venture, based upon quality rather than quantity production, was a success and stimulated his ambitions. The business which began 59 years ago with one variety, is now represented by more than 57 pure food products. The company operates 25 branch factories and kitchens in this country, England, Spain and Canada.

"I have briefly reviewed the history of the industry. But it is not living in or on its past—it is living in the present and future, building today and planning for tomorrow. Our vision cannot be too broad, for the future holds limitless possibilities of development and progress.

"Carnegie, Westinghouse, Jones, Laughlin, Armstrong and Heinz and other pioneer industrialists had great vision, but it is doubtful whether even they foresaw Pittsburgh and its industries in their present greatness. The past is fixed. We honor those who have gone before us. We record their accomplishments and achievements, their faith and their vision. The present is ours to make of it what we will."

Invents Waterproof Leather Sole

BENJAMIN W. KLEIN, founder
Klein's Rapid Shoe Repair Co.

Many people wonder why their shoes wear out so much faster at this time of the year. The reason is that water and dampness rot leather.

Klein's waterproof leather soles are impervious to water. Dampness cannot penetrate this leather and rot it, because these patented soles are treated by a secret waterproofing process. They wear much longer than ordinary soles. They keep your feet dry—even in the wettest weather—and prevent colds, grippe and other ailments.

Genuine Klein Waterproof Soles can be attached to any pair of shoes, new or old, and are obtainable only at Klein Stores. Be sure to look for the name K-L-E-I-N on the window.

HISTORICAL CRAVATS

Copying the Works of the Old Masters—Designs Imparting a Unique Appeal—Quality to Please the Most Fastidious

The makers of the cravat sketched here reached back through history to the eleventh century for their art conception—the designs of historic carpets in the Mosque of Sultan Achmet, Constantinople . . . A rich beige d'or is the background on which maroon patterns combine with transverse blue stripes to pigment the purple of royalty.

Faithfully reproducing the motifs of the windows of the Cathedral of Rheims, is the cravat pictured at the right . . . Catching in its weaving the spirit of majesty of that ill fated edifice . . . Simulating in its subtle, ever changing colorings the splendor of the originals—as if one were viewing them, sun-pierced, in the quiet of late afternoon.

VOTE MACHINES COME TO STAY CHECK SHOWS

Voting machines are an improvement in every respect on the paper ballot system of elections. They are more accurate and more honest; they expedite voting and reduce election expense—this is the consensus of opinion in the 1,800 cities, townships and villages of the United States which now employ them.

At the next general election the people of Pennsylvania will be called upon to approve or reject a proposed constitutional amendment authorizing the use of voting machines. A campaign of education has been started to help the citizens pass intelligently on the question. As a contribution to this purpose The Sun-Telegraph has collected reports and expressions of opinion from a number of places where voting machines have been used. They come from newspapers, public officials and others.

Some which may be taken as representative follow:

New York Evening Journal of November 3, 1926: "Aside from the election of their favorite candidates, what concerned Brooklynites most was the operation of the voting machines, which were used there for the first time. At the close of the day they were declared to be successful. There were several delays because voters were not familiar with the machines, but they were of minor importance. In the main, the voters and party workers approved the machines, and the wish was expressed on all sides that there would be more of them in future elections."

Albert O. Kurth, auditor of Scott county, Iowa: "I have been in the county auditor's office for the last 17 years, and have handled election work under the old and new system of voting, and I feel sure that if the people of Pennsylvania will try these machines at one election there will be a terrible 'holler' made if you don't keep on using them at all elections afterward."

Glenn J. Schultes, secretary, board of elections, Buffalo, N. Y.: "Voting machines have been in use in this city for 25 years, and have been very satisfactory. The cost of elections has been materially reduced by eliminating one-third of the election officers per district and reducing the number of districts by approximately 50 per cent. The returns are quick and accurate, and within one hour after the closing of the polls newspapers are on the streets giving complete results of the election in the city of Buffalo."

George A. Grant, auditor of King's county, Washington: "Paper ballot system costs 3½ cents per vote; machine system costs 11.2 cents per vote. Machines are good for lifetime of service, and pay for themselves in eight years. Fireproof also."

Davenport (Ia.) Daily Times: "The Brookhart-Steck contest emphasizes the need of reform in the manner in which elections are conducted. All the dispute about the 1,400 ballots in which the voter marked the Republican party circle and did not mark the square in front of Brookhart's name could have been avoided had a simpler system been in vogue. The more general adoption of voting machines would help greatly. The mechanism is as nearly fool-proof as inventive genius can make it. Since there is no circle on those machines in use in Scott county it is not possible to spoil the ballot. You vote or you don't vote for a nominee, and it is accurately recorded. The cost of the senatorial fight has been estimated to be about a half million dollars. That's what must be spent of the people's money to straighten out a tangle which is a reproach to the intelligence of the people of Iowa. The more progressive counties have installed voting machines, but in those sections in which boneheaded voting is most evident the economy of that investment naturally is not appreciated."

J. A. Gleason, clerk, Hartford, Conn.: "We have used voting machines exclusively in all elections for approximately 20 years, and we find that the voters have no difficulty in operating them and have shown themselves able to split tickets and vote for individuals with rapidity and accuracy. It is my opinion that they would not be reconciled to reversion to the old form of paper ballot."

Grier M. Shotwell, civic secretary, Chamber of Commerce, Indianapolis: "Voting machines have been used very successfully in Marion county, and with a very considerable economy of expense. Returns are more quickly secured, and, generally speaking, the machines are to be preferred over the paper ballot."

OFF-COLOR TEETH

Lighten quickly—Gums firm

Get Pepsodent—Works wonders by clearing film coat from teeth

TEETH seldom are naturally "off color." Most often they're merely coated with a film that forms on teeth and absorbs discolorations from food, smoking, etc. By clearing it off, one's whole appearance may be changed.

Old-type dentifrices failed to remove that film successfully. That's why brushing has failed you. Now leading dentists urge the special film-removing dentifrice, called Pepsodent, for this purpose.

Results are quick and surprising. Film coats go. Teeth whiten; sparkle like jewels. Bacteria that thrive in film are combated; tooth decay, gum troubles and pyorrhea thus scientifically fought.

To prove those results, accept 10-day tube free. Or get full-size tube for few cents at your druggist. Do this in fairness to yourself.

SHERIFF'S SALE ENDS HOSPITAL PROJECT

A 14-acre tract of land in the Chartiers valley, near the junction of the city and Crafton, purchased 20 years ago for the erection of the Chartiers Valley Hospital, went under the Sheriff's hammer yesterday. It was bid in by the Equitable Real Estate Company, assignee of the Colonial Trust Company, for costs and taxes amounting to $6,984.

The sale ended an ambitious project launched about 1908 for the establishment of a large hospital in the Chartiers valley, joined in by leading citizens of that section of the county. Many subscriptions were received and the tract, operated at Oakwood Park, was obtained as a site. The project languished and at times was revived during the intervening score of years, an effort having been made about a year ago to start a drive. One reason assigned for its failure was the development of improved county roads and the resulting accessibility of that territory to other hospitals.

INJUNCTION HITS "BEAUTY"

W. G. Schaefer leased the first floor of a four-story brick building at Sankey avenue and Brownsville road, Brentwood, for a barber shop. Then he installed a permanent waving machine and the barber shop became a beauty shop, according to John Lachman, who owns the building.

Lachman complains that Schaefer violated his lease agreement by installing the "waver" and has asked Judge Harry H. Rowand in Common Pleas Court for a preliminary injunction to restrain Schaefer from using the machine. The injunction was granted, and hearing set for December 9.

SAYS SHE STOLE FOR CHILDREN

In straitened circumstances because her husband, a miner, has been out of work for eight months, and her five children were in need of food and clothing, Mrs. Martha Brennen, of Finleyville, took a dress, a pair of shoes and gloves from a downtown department store September 24, she declared in Criminal Court, when arraigned for shoplifting. She had previously been caught shoplifting, but not arrested, it was testified. Judge James R. Macfarlane paroled her for one year, at the same time warning her against future transgressions.

"She's a Septic!"

Many women want to be, deserve to be, and could be far more popular than is their lot. Doctors know why. So do nurses. They call such cases septics.

To remedy slingeious body odors and bad breath, you must recognize their cause. The trouble is deep-seated. Frankly in the colon. Semi-constipation makes millions of systems septic. There may be a daily movement, but all the waste is not eliminated. The matter that remains poisons the blood, and permeates the perspiration. It taints the breath. Nature is supposed her need of a little calcium.

Calcium works wonders in one's appearance, too. With the inner system sweet and clean, the complexion clears almost unwittingly. Eyes brighten. Teeth whiten. The tongue is no longer coated, even on arising. And you never need take another harsh cathartic.

Perhaps you are septic, and don't know it. Try a tiny bit of calcium, and see! It may make all the difference in the world. Leave harsh, habit-forming cathartics alone. You never need them if you take an occasional calcium tablet.

A five-day test will prove to you very conclusively the system's need for calcium, and the benefit from these little wafers. Your druggist has them for 10c. Or the family size, 60c. Start this test today!

DRY VIOLATORS GET LIGHT FINES

Fines ranging from $50 to $200 were imposed Monday in the Federal District Court on defendants who pleaded guilty to violating the national prohibition law. William Finnell of 53 Fernando street, because of a prior conviction for disobeying the prohibition law, was sentenced to serve six months in jail.

Frank Taradejna, Thomas A. Yoest, Charles Evans, Charles Bulger, Thomas J. Rice and T. J. Gillespie were fined $200 each; Frank E. Burdett and Peter Ganster were fined $100 each; Walter Etter, $150; Sam Haber and August A. Mehis, $50 each.

John Reiskowski, of 46 Vine street, Natrona, a hotel proprietor, was convicted of violating the prohibition law, and Lawrence D. Campbell was convicted of resisting prohibition officers and unlawfully possessing 30 gallons of moonshine whisky.

PROPOSE NEW OFFICIAL FLAG

A new official flag for Pittsburgh is proposed in an ordinance being considered by Council.

At present, by a law passed in 1899, the city has four official flags—the standard, ensign, pennant and streamer. The last three never are used and the new plan calls for one standard of black and the shade of gold technically known as cadmium yellow, the colors of the heraldry of William Pitt.

The standard would be in three vertical divisions, the first and third black and the center one gold. In the center would appear the city coat of arms, described thus in heraldic language: "Sable, a fess chequay Argent et Azure between three bezants bearing eagles rising with wings displayed and inverted Or. For crest, Sable, a tripled towered castle masoned argent."

It would be unlawful to put any other thing on the flag.

BEATEN, WOULD QUIT MATE

Her husband beat her, threatened to shoot her, and refused to summon a physician when her clothing caught fire, Mrs. Katherine A. Robertson, of Turtle Creek, in her divorce action against her husband before Judge John A. Evans yesterday, alleged.

Mrs. Mary Pope, 557 Lenora street, in her divorce proceedings against her husband, Frank Pope, told Judge Evans that her husband had given her 50 cents to return to her home six months after their marriage.

VOGT ASKS JUSTICES TO FILE ACCEPTANCES

John Vogt, prothonotary of the Common Pleas Courts, today reminded newly elected justices of the peace and aldermen that the law requires them to file with him an acceptance of their office within 30 days after election, at the same time stating whom they succeeded. This must be done, said Mr. Vogt, before the elections can be certified to the proper authorities.

MEDITATIONS of a MARRIED WOMAN

ANY WIFE TO ANY HUSBAND

HELEN ROWLAND

I know nothing that I do not know about you—

The way you fling your clothes around the floor,

The way, in temper, you can slam a door,

The fearful things you long to drink and eat—

The way you size up flappers on the street,

Your vanity—and all the shoes you wear!

The little thin spot, where you part your hair,

Your weakness for a passionate cravat,

And giddy hat-bands on your summer hat.

I know how gay you feel in white plus-fours,

And how you wiggle out of doing chores.

I know by heart all your pet alibis,

Your favorite jokes and harmless, little lies—

The way you groan at "overwork"—then go

Blithely to play a round of golf—I KNOW!

I've seen you when with subtlety and grace,

You scraped the lather from your shining face,

I've rubbed your head when it was dull and achy,

And when your hands were just a little shaky.

Just by your step, your smile, your kiss, I vow

I know where you have been, with whom—and how!

Ah yes, dear Boy, I know you through and through,

I even know what you are GOING to do,

There's nothing that I do not know about you,

And yet—and yet, I cannot live WITHOUT you!

Puppy Love Not So Serious, Fay King's View

By FAY KING.

A GIRL and a boy, still attending school, are attracting nation-wide attention because they have entered into a "companionate marriage" advocated by Judge Lindsey!

They will continue to live with their parents. They will continue to attend school.

What effect this will have on their fellow students, young people in general and marriage in particular, is a matter of much controversy.

The young lady has already expressed an ambition to in time become a dancer. Can this be publicity to help her?

I do not believe many other young people will enter into this sort of vowless marriage with the intention of dissolving it by mutual consent in time.

There are so many opportunities open to young people these days, both boys and girls, that with their minds filled with hope and ambition, sex and marriage have been more or less submerged for the time being.

Such young people find inspiration in being real pals.

Girls think of marriage sooner than boys, because their most natural ambition in life is to have a home of their own. Since courtship leads to marriage, a girl while very young begins to use her charms and wit to captivate the most likely young man.

And many young men are married before they realize what it is all about!

Companionate marriage takes puppy love too seriously. One always remembers his or her first youthful romance with so much pleasure because it was so innocent and harmless.

The difference between humans and animals is that with humans sex is not the sole foundation of affection.

But if we are going to make sex the pivot of all human reactions, then it is not a question whether we descended FROM apes, but whether we are descending TO apes!

WHAT'S THE ANSWER?

1. What three countries in South America does the equator cross?
2. What is a "defacto" government?
3. What reptile can stick out its tongue the length of its body?
4. In the days of the Venetian Republic, what was the "Lion's Mouth?"
5. In what two states is the Negro population greater than the white?
6. What is brown sugar?
7. What is an albino?
8. What African fly carries the germ of sleeping sickness?
9. In what city was President McKinley shot?
10. Where was the Colossus of Rhodes located?

The answers to these questions may be found in tomorrow's paper.

Here are the answers to yesterday's questions.

1. The steamship Baden-Baden is famous because it utilizes wind power for propulsion by means of rotors rather than sails.
2. Most canal boats are still drawn by mules rather than propelled by machinery because the disturbance of the water caused by a propeller causes the banks generally to fill in the bottom of the channel.
3. According to the Talmud, Lilith was Adam's first wife.
4. Rome was founded in 753 B. C.
5. Ingres painted "La Source."
6. The island, Tierra del Fuego, lies south of the straits of Magellan.
7. A harpy is a rapacious bird with the head of a woman.
8. Charter Oak is a tree in Hartford, Conn., in which the Colonial Charter is supposed to have been secreted in 1687.
9. The word "gospel" formerly meant "glad-tidings;" it is of Anglo-Saxon origin.
10. There are 13 or 14 high tides a week.

Raisin Sauce

One-half cup puffed raisins, 1 cup boiling water, ¾ cup sugar, ⅛ teaspoon lemon juice, ¼ cup chopped citron, 1 teaspoon cornstarch, 1 tablespoon butter. Simmer the raisins and citron in the water until the citron is tender (about one hour). Sift the sugar and cornstarch together and add to the raisin mixture. Mix well and continue cooking for 10 minutes. Add the butter and the lemon juice.

To Make Pine Cough Syrup at Home

Has no equal for prompt results. Takes but a moment to make. Saves about $2

Pine is used in nearly all prescriptions and remedies for coughs. The reason is, pine has a remarkable effect in soothing and healing the membranes of the throat and chest.

Pine cough syrups are combinations of pine and syrup. The "syrup" part is usually plain sugar syrup.

To make the best pine cough remedy that money can buy, put 2½ ounces of Pinex in a pint bottle, and fill up with home-made sugar syrup. Or you can use clarified honey, instead of sugar syrup. This makes a full pint—more than you can buy ready-made for three times the money. It is pure, and tastes good.

You can feel this take hold of a cough or cold in a way that means business. The cough may be dry, hoarse and tight, or may be persistently loose from the formation of phlegm. The cause is the same—inflamed membranes—and this Pinex and Syrup combination will stop it—usually in 24 hours or less. Splendid, too, for bronchial asthma, bronchitis, and hoarseness.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract and palatable guaiacol, and is famous the world over for its prompt effect upon coughs.

Beware of substitutes. Ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with directions. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

Poison in System Affects the Heart

THIS is the third of a series of articles about the heart. The others related to the needs of the heart muscle and the cause of irregular pulse.

Today I want to tell you a few things about certain troubles which disturb the speed of the heart's action.

The action may be regular enough, each beat being like all the rest, but the heart is made to run too fast, or to fall far below the normal number of beats per minute.

I have told you lots of times that doctors are inclined to use big and unfamiliar words in describing disease. This confuses the layman, but the practice makes it possible for doctors of all nationalities to call diseases by identical names.

When medical men speak of "brachycardia," they have in mind a condition in which the heart beats very, very slowly.

There are many causes. Chief of these is poisoning of some sort. The poison may come from outside the body, or it may be due to some disturbed state of the system.

For instance, there may be some trouble which results in a marked decrease in the passage of urine. Failure to carry away the poisons of the body may cause the heart to slow down.

In jaundice—"yellow janders," as they call it in the country—there may be absorption of the bile. This acts as a poison, slowing the heart.

Lead poisoning has slow heart's action as one of the symptoms. We do not permit the use of lead pipes and practices which used to be real factors in producing slow heart.

The opposite condition to brachycardia is known as "tachycardia."

This word is used to name rapid action of the heart. During an attack it is not uncommon for the pulse to reach 175 or even 200 beats per minute.

So violent is the heart's action that you can see the pounding and beating of the veins of the neck. This may go on for an hour or so, or last for many weeks.

Tachycardia is more likely to be seen in young persons than in old. It may follow scarlet fever or rheumatism. Any pus infection may produce it.

Where there is a tendency to this symptom, violent exertion, or sudden shock may bring on an attack.

If the pulse takes a sudden notion to run too fast or too slowly, it is a good thing to go to bed and keep quiet. If it is a symptom which persists, it will be necessary to lead a quieter life. Leisure and contentment of mind are important factors in bringing about permanent relief.

Unless you are rich, I hope you will not develop chronic tachycardia. Long sea voyages cost money.

But by proper eating and leading the simple life you are not likely to develop one of these or any other form of heart disturbance.

Answers to Health Queries

L. M. P. Q.—How can I reduce?

A.—Weight reduction is chiefly a matter of self-control as regards the diet. Eat very sparingly of starches, sugars and fats. Exercise is essential. For full particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

COOKING SCHOOL ECHOES

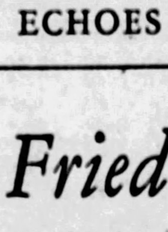
the classic "sea table" retained

Select large oysters. Wash them, sprinkle with salt and pepper and dip first in bread crumbs, then in beaten egg and again in bread crumbs. Place in a wire basket and drop into deep Crisco heated until it browns a cube of bread in 60 seconds. Fry until nicely browned. Drain on paper. Serve hot with tomato sauce or catsup.

The real "ocean flavor" of the oyster is a delicate, elusive flavor—oysters must be fried in a "delicate" fat. I prefer Crisco for frying oysters, because as Crisco has no taste or odor of itself, it allows real oyster flavor "to come out." Oysters fried in Crisco are a crisp, golden brown outside—tender and digestible inside.



To test your cooking fat—taste it.
Crisco's sweet flavor will astonish you.

W. VA. GOLD RUSH SEEN AS LEASE IS EXECUTED

CLARKSBURG, W. Va., Dec. 6—A gold rush up Simpson Creek, in the Bridgeport district, 10 miles east of here is expected as the result of the recording of a lease for gold and silver mining on the Winter farm, Monday, at the courthouse.

G. Lee Flannagan and W. W. Morgan, lessees, today filed their papers for the gold, silver and all other mineral rights, except coal, oil and gas on three tracts embracing 112 acres, known as the J. S. Winter farm.

So far no strike has been reported from that district, but as soon as it became known that the land had been leased, many persons started for the Winter farm.

OLD MAP IS CLUE

An old map, indicating gold tracings, on the Winter farm, two miles from Bridgeport, is the clue which sent Flanagan and Morgan on their gold hunt, it was revealed today.

Flanagan today said mining operations would be started within four days. He says he and Morgan carefully explored Simpson Creek from its mouth at Meadowbrooke to its source, south of Bridgeport, and making comparisons with the map, they picked out a point near the Winter residence as the "exact spot."

J. S. Winter, owner of the land leased, professed to know nothing about the existence of gold or silver on his farm. The lease, dated October 25, provides that mining operations start within 90 days. He gets one-eighth royalty. The lease is to run five years with option to continue as long as gold or silver is found in paying quantities.

DAY AND NIGHT SHIFTS RUSH WORK ON GRANT BUILDING EXCAVATION

Record speed in the face of unusual difficulties has been made in the excavation for the new Grant Building to go up at the southeast corner of Grant street and Fourth avenue. The contractors set two steam-shovels to work on the job September 27 and day and night shifts of 80 men have been working since that time. A layer of loose earth was first encountered, then shale, and then very hard blue rock. More shale was encountered after passing this ledge but concrete piers on the bottom will rest on another ledge of solid rock. Blasting was carried on so carefully that work in the City-County Building in the background was not disturbed. The lower level of the excavation seen here is close to the bottom set by the plans.

Economies of Operation

FOR fifty years Swift & Company has been handling perishable meat products. During that time an efficient money-saving system of marketing has been developed.

Science has been utilized to find new uses for many products that once were waste and better uses for old products. Multiplied uses have increased volume. Increased volume has resulted in decreased manufacturing and marketing expense. Experience, science and skill have reduced waste to a minimum.

Swift's marketing system means only one profit—and that is low. For the entire operation of converting live animals into Premium Ham and Bacon, Brookfield Sausage and other finished meat products and distributing them to the retailer, Swift & Company receives a profit from all sources averaging only a fraction of a cent per pound.

The National Distribution Conference in 1925 found the wholesale expenses of the packers' branch houses to be the lowest of the seventeen trades studied.

These economies of operation make possible full market value for live stock and lowest possible prices for meat. Swift & Company serves both producer and consumer efficiently and well.

HALT EXCUSED JURORS' PAY

The customary day's pay for jurors reporting and excused from service was banned in Criminal Court by Judges James R. Macfarlane and James B. Drew in excusing 39 jurors, including 15 women, from the two panels of 140 each reporting for two weeks' duty. The main excuse offered was that jury service would seriously interfere with the business or employment of the talesmen summoned.

"Since you seek to be excused to return to your business or employment, you will not be paid for reporting today," declared Judge Drew, excusing 20. Judge Macfarlane, excusing 19, made a few exceptions to the order, in one case allowing mileage and the day's pay to Mrs. Esther Goetz, who has been married and moved to Ambridge since being called for service. Thomas W. Conway, tipstaff in Common Pleas Court, was summoned and excused. The practice has been to allow jurors pay for one day, the day of reporting, when they are excused.

The disposition of criminal cases was hampered by the inability of the local courts to obtain the services of visiting judges, as the December term of the court opened in nearly every county of the state. Two will report today.

Announcements of Gay Social Functions Promise to Enhance Festivities of Yuletide Season

AT THE close of last month but few dates were taken for the days preceding the Christmas holidays. The pre-holiday season is going to be gayer, however, than was then expected, now that dates for social events, quite varied in the form of entertainment, are being announced.

Mrs. J. Frank Drake of Pembroke place will entertain tomorrow afternoon at a luncheon and theater party in honor of Florence Carroll, the popular debutante daughter of the Walter Cockrill Carrolls of College avenue. Florence, it will be remembered, was the first bud to be presented this season. The luncheon will be held in Mrs. Drake's home.

The return of the Carroll family to the city, after a sojourn of five or six years in Chicago, has certainly been welcomed in the social world. Mrs. Carroll was always a popular hostess, I remember.

An interesting event for the girls who came out last year for the year before will be a bridge party Mrs. Carroll will give in her home on College avenue in honor of ther older daughter, Mary Edith. The date for this affair is December 15.

Mary Edith was presented to Chicago society a season or so ago.

Marjorie Kimball, daughter of the G. Cook Kimballs of Beechwood boulevard, has had as her house guest her friend, Katherine Young, of Chicago.

Quite the leading event of the day is the tea Mrs. Galen C. Hartman is giving this afternoon in the Twentieth Century Club with more than 300 women as guests. Sharing honors at the event are two recent brides, Mrs. Lowell Briggs Page of Detroit, who was formerly Martha Close, and Mrs. Harold Boyd Hershman, who was formerly Winifred Jones of Los Angeles. The third guest of honor is Mrs. George Herbert Muckley of Washington. Mrs. Muckley arrived in the city this morning, and is Mrs. Hartman's house guest.

Mrs. Hartman and her honor guests are receiving in the ballroom of the club, which is decorated with chrysanthemums, roses and ferns. The hostess is wearing a two-piece beige crepe gown embroidered with gold, and a brown velvet hat; Mrs. Page, Napoleon blue chiffon with a blue velvet hat; Mrs. Hershman, black velvet and silver cloth with a black velvet hat, and Mrs. Muckley, emerald green velvet with a small green velvet hat.

Tea is being served in the dining room and card room. The tea table in the dining room is centered with heather and chrysanthemums and lighted by orchid and yellow tapers in crystal holders; in the card room the second tea table is centered with yellow chrysanthemums and pompons and lighted by green candles in crystal holders.

Chrysanthemums and ferns, arranged in tall urns and standards, are employed in decorating the first floor of the clubhouse. A screen of cibotium fenrs in the reception hall conceals the orchestra.

Among the out-of-town guests at the tea are Elizabeth Hare of Wheeling, who is wearing black georgette and lace and a black velvet hat; Eleanor Carson of Buffalo, who is appearing in black velvet with a small hat of the same material; Mrs. John L. Carson of Buffalo, whose gown is of blue crepe and hat of blue velvet; Mrs. Charles Noaks of Cleveland, brown velvet with a gold toque; Mrs. George Galey of Beaver, in amethyst velvet with hat to correspond, and Mrs. James H. Duff of Beaver, in a French imported frock.

Mrs. Samuel H. McKee is to entertain at dinner tonight in her home in Wilkinsburg in honor of the out-of-town guests here for the tea.

Mary Mellon McClung, debutante daughter of the Samuel Alfred McClungs, of Murrayhill avenue, is to be the guest of honor at another party on Christmas Eve, when the junior John F. Waltons, of Amberson place, will give a dinner in the Pittsburgh Golf Club. The dinner will precede the weekly dance in the club.

Mr. and Mrs. Martin Oehling, of Lawrenceville, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Theresa D. Oehling, to W. Verner Dermitt, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. W. V. Dermitt, of Pittsburgh. No wedding date has been set.

The attractions of the seashore seem to be almost as potent in midwinter as they are in summer. A number of Pittsburghers are there for varying periods of time, among them being Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. McKay and Mr. and Mrs. J. Boyd McKown. They are stopping at the Traymore in Atlantic City.

CLUBS HEAR ANALYSIS OF STAGE PRODUCTIONS

"That he should love the theater very, very deeply is an essential qualification of any one who talks about it," said John Van Druten, the celebrated young English playwright, yesterday in his talk on current plays. Singularly, two clubs in Pittsburgh yesterday heard such talks, both given by men possessed of the "essential qualification;" for Mr. Van Druten, himself, addressed the several hundred members of the Twentieth Century Club, and Elmer Kenyon, president of the Pittsburgh Drama League, addressed the several (without the hundred) members of the Women's Press Club. It was curiously interesting to hear the two speakers state their variance and likeness of opinion on some of the same plays.

Mr. Van Druten spoke, first of "The Trial of Mary Dugan" which he said he had thoroughly enjoyed, but which has no idea in it at all and is based on false emotions and incidents. "A magnificent afternoon just for the fun of the thing," he summed it up. On the other hand, Mr. Kenyon in his Press Club talk, said any courtroom could furnish as good entertainment. Galsworthy's latest and last (?) play, "Escape," was another work discussed by both men. Galsworthy begs the question of helping an escaped convict, said Mr. Van Druten. "Galsworthy sets the keynote of the play in its first act," said Mr. Kenyon, but the English speaker went on to a lengthy discussion of the inadvisability of writing a play in 12 scenes (it breaks the illusion of reality too often), and he spoke, too, of Galsworthy's propaganda for the "under dog." "Escape" would have been a better play if written in one act, Mr. Van Druten thinks.

Sean O'Casey's "The Plough and the Stars" was one of the plays highly praised by both speakers. In this play of the anti-war propaganda, tragedy and comedy jostle each other continually, the playwright paints his picture in broad splashing strokes and (quoting Mr. Kenyon) "rivals Shakespeare in a play that rises to universality." "Fallen Angels" is not offensive, although it is a French farce written in English, and "The Command to Love" is "most offensive and unfunny," said Mr. Van Druten. He commented also on the modern dress version of "The Taming of the Shrew," "Porgy" and "Burlesque," one of those "back stage plays" which seem to be the fashion at present.

Among others mentioned by Mr. Kenyon were the Reinhardt production of "Midsummer Night's Dream," "Chicago" and "Broadway."

Mr. Van Druten also addressed the Sewickley Valley Woman's Club yesterday afternoon, speaking again on the plays of Broadway.

The editorials in the current issue of the Congress Outlet are distinctly above the average, even for that well-managed little magazine. Mrs. D. Edwin Miller, chairman of the department of education, has contributed an interesting article on "For a Safe Christmas," in which she pleads for the establishment of positive habits of safety in children. There are also the various department reports, the drama department's showing the ingenious touch of its chairman, Mrs. Chester F. Johnston, who has written it after the fashion of a play. The calendar, which is also announced in the newly issued magazine, is as follows: December 6, department of welfare, luncheon; 7, department of recreation, dance; 12, benevolent and hospitality, bridge for the Zoar Home; 13, department of literature, dinner; 14, departments of legislation and education, luncheon at Westinghouse High School; 19, departments of drama, music and fine arts, Christmas luncheon; 27, department of recreation, children's party.

STAGE AND SCREEN

FRISCO IS HIT IN DAVIS

One of the funniest of funny men—whose jokes could all be told at a quilting party—is at the Davis this week. Joe Frisco is a genuine humorist; he does not need to resort to double meanings or risque allusions to keep his audience laughing, and he keeps them laughing from first to last—whether he throws away a cigar lighter because it works, "it must be broken," or assists Burt Shepherd, the whip king, in his cracking good act. Frisco alone is worth going to see and hear if there were nobody else on the bill, but the bill is rich in various attractive features. There are Herma and Juan Reyes, who play classic music with rare skill on violin and piano. There is Val Harris as "The Sheik of '61," assisted by Vera Griffin in a sophisticated sketch. Zelda Santley is another of the numerous tribe of mimics, and an exceptionally good one. The Howards have performing ponies and dogs that furnish a miniature circus by themselves. Adele Jason and a quartet of comedians satirize the lady-killers of the Navy in amusing fashion. "The Last Waltz" is the feature photoplay, with romantic appeal, and Billy Dooley in "Dizzy Sights" furnishes swift comedy.

"Seventh Heaven" Good Film In Grand

Screen versions of well known stage plays compel those who have seen the play to make mental comparisons on viewing the film adaptation. "Adaptation" is not quite the right word, for sometimes the screen vehicle has little resemblance to the original. Even when the play is adhered to there always is elaboration. In the case of "Seventh Heaven," shown in the Grand this week, the film does not suffer by comparison with the original. It has all the pathos and feeling and fantastic imagery of the spoken play, plus elaboration that enhances the basic story of that "very remarkable fellow," Chico, sewer man of Paris, and the little waif of the streets, Diane. Charles Farrell was just bursting with confidence in himself as Chico and Janet Gaynor, as the wistful mite, Diane, registered with truth the reaction that came through Chico's friendship for her. It is a good picture. On the stage, Holt and Weir, "The Australian Dandies," and their orchestra, presented a novel specialty. An Aesop Fable, news pictures and an orchestral overture completed the bill.

Ruth Elder Tops Penn Program On Stage

Ruth Elder, making a "personal appearance" before a large audience in the Penn yesterday, impressed that audience as a rather reserved young woman rather than the daring girl who made aeronautic history in a trans-Atlantic flight. The appearance of Miss Elder was preceded by motion pictures relating to her flight, the departure, the enthusiastic reception in Paris and her hearty welcome in New York when she returned. At the conclusion of the films she came before the curtain, attired in a white evening gown and displaying her famous smile. She gave a brief address detailing the battle against the storm the second night of the flight, the landing at sea, rescue of the fliers and the burning of the airplane. It was a modest recital of a great adventure and the audience attested its approval by hearty applause. On the screen a film version of "In Old Kentucky" gave Helen Costello, James Murray and Wesley Barry opportunity to make new friends as the old melodrama of the stage flashed new charm and comedy in a modern setting. The orchestral overture was selections from "The Merry Widow." Dick Leibert's organlogue was "Flaming Ruth," dedicated to Miss Elder.

"Sugar Babies" Is Academy Show

Harry Fields and his "Sugar Babies," rewritten since last seen here, are this week's burlesque attraction in the Academy. In a burletta called "Round the World" opportunities for scenic effects have not been overlooked. In a skit, "The Chinese Den," character types are presented. The comedy element is represented by Fields, who plays the role of "Hello Jake." Althea Barnes, has song numbers in a travesty, "Slums of Paris." Vi Penny sings and dances. Charles L. Schultz, Jack Hankins and Jack Rosen appear in comedy roles. "Dottie" mystifies with novelty turn. Hinda Wassau and Anna Evans, with her dancing girls, are extra features.

Ann's Spirit Weakens as She Learns That Bill Loves Only Georgie

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Ann and Georgie Hastings, sisters, live together in Mrs. O'Leary's boarding house. Ann, the elder, works in a factory and Georgie in an insurance office. Ann is proud of her sister's good looks and charming manners and pleads with her to accept the attentions of Bill Warren, who is madly in love with her, and to have nothing more to do with Ernest Brooks, a chance acquaintance who has been rushing her. Bill makes a confidant of Ann and proposes to Georgie, who refuses him. Ann's solicitude for her sister ends in a quarrel between the two, and Ann becomes conscious that she herself is fond of Bill, and the day after the quarrel he asks her to have lunch with him. During lunch he shows he is still devoted to Georgie, and Ann asks him why he doesn't call on her sister that evening. Bill comes to the boarding house and after waiting for Georgie sees her arrive with Ernest. Georgie vindictively tells Bill she doesn't care if she never sees him again, and in desperation he turns to Ann and asks her if she would be willing to go out with him now and then. Ann discovers that Bill has been drinking and shows her great disappointment in him, but resolves to do all she can to help him. Meanwhile Georgie, in a spirit of adventure, goes to call on Ernest in his studios. He proposes a trip abroad with her, promising to marry her when they get to Italy. Georgie leaves his studio, telling him that was impossible.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

SHE looked at him now, meeting his gaze, her whole soul in her eyes. Surely he would be blind if he couldn't see how she felt. But all at once she felt something like an icy hand laid on her heart. His gaze had gone on beyond hers, and suddenly the corners of his mouth drooped miserably. He looked desperate.

Ann turned. She saw, not far away, a couple that had just entered: Georgie and Ernest Brooks! But the sight of them together was less depressing than the look on Bill Warren's face. For it shattered her hopes, broke up rosy dreams. It told her now, very clearly and with bitter finality, that Bill still loved Georgie, that he would perhaps always love Georgie, and never really love anyone else.

CHAPTER XIX.

YET THE impression was gone as swiftly as it had come. Looking at him now, Ann wondered why it was her heart had plunged sickeningly downward, why she had felt with deadly certainty that Bill loved Georgie and would always love her.

He was sitting there calmly enough, facing her across the table in Rivard's Restaurant, and there was only the little flicker of recognition in his eyes that showed he was conscious of Georgie's nearness. No other sign, no other hint that he was moved or troubled.

Ann passed her hand across her eyes. It was like an hallucination, she felt. Why it was only one more indication of all Bill meant to her. She cared so much that she tortured herself with thoughts of losing him forever.

But Bill made no comment. He was pretending he hadn't seen Georgie and Ernest Brooks. Ann stole a covert glance in their direction. A feminine glance that missed nothing, that flew comprehensively to them and away from them in the fraction of a second.

George had, of course, seen them. If Ann needed no other proof, the way Georgie had turned her chair, turned her face away, would have been proof enough.

Georgie was angry, embarrassed, defiant. She was laughing, talking swiftly, excitedly. There was a cold smile on Ernest Brooks' mouth. He was consulting a menu with a fixed look. So they had decided to cut Ann and Bill. And Bill had decided to pretend they weren't there.

Ann couldn't stand it, she wanted frankness now, wanted the truth. She said deliberately:

"Funny, their coming here, too! . . . Isn't it?"

Bill looked up. His face seemed quite pale. He glanced in the direction of Ann's nod, and made a show of being surprised.

What fools men were! she thought. As if he could deceive her for one minute! Pretending he hadn't even seen them. He was smiling, but smiling uncertainly.

"What do we care about them?" he asked. His voice was a little husky. It shook the least bit.

And Ann's heart went downward once more. "He's in love with her, in love with her!" she said wearily to herself, and the words went on in a kind of desperate refrain in her head. "In love with her, in love with her."

Suddenly she wanted to get out of Rivard's as soon as possible, she wanted to escape. She felt miserable, she felt sick.

What was the use of anything, what was the use of living? Bill loved Georgie, he still loved her, he adored her. He could never be horribly hurt like that by Ann herself, never, never, never!

And then fiercely to herself she said: "I won't give him up! I'll make him forget her! I'll make him love me!"

It was strange how her mood changed then. She took new courage from her own determination.

She smiled, listened without knowing what he was saying, something about the food, something about good restaurants.

"Yes, Bill . . . yes . . . . you're right.

Georgie's back to her still, Ernest Brooks stealing swift, hostile glances at her when he thought she wasn't looking. But Ann's senses were sharpened now. She saw everything. Her mind was leaping swiftly. She'd get out of here, not linger a moment more than was necessary.

"Bill, let's got out to Hollis Park. I'd like to go there. Will you take me there?"

"Sure."

"And I'm not hungry. Besides I'd like to save my appetite for hot dogs. Let's just get a bite here—I've had enough already."

"I know, but dessert—"

"Oh, I don't want any dessert. I don't want a single thing more. Let's go out now before the crowd gets there. Why, I haven't been out to Hollis Park this summer."

The check was paid, they rose and made their way out. Bill was walking very straight, he was frowning, looking hard in front of them. The revolving door purred smoothly. They were out in the air. Ann drew deeply a long breath of relief.

And Bill was lighter, gayer now, almost too cheerful. He was talking away, making jokes, but his eyes were burning. They were grim and serious.

"It doesn't matter," Ann told herself. "He's thinking about her, but I'll make him forget. I'll make him think about me instead. I can, I know I can."

But she felt depressed and unhappy.

Then they were at Hollis Park. The Ferris wheel was going slowly and solemnly around with its lighted chariots. A roar of wheels and violence, shrill screams and laughs, came from the speeding cars of the scenic railway. A merry-go-round, with its painted horses and mechanical tune circled monotonously.

The carts of the peanut-venders sent up their thin whistle of steam. The cries of the barkers, the smell of rice cakes, of mustard, of root beer, and ears of hot corn, mingled in familiar confusion.

It was a fine evening, and the attendance at the park was large. Ann and Bill strolled with the crowd.

"Let's have our picture taken. Sure, in the airplane."

They smiled broadly in the face of the light that gave their skins an unnatural greenish hue. But Ann put her picture back in its envelope, and put that in her bag, and she thought how she would look at it secretly afterwards, how she would stare at it the first thing in the morning, stare and remember, and dream. . . .

The serious look was leaving Bill's eyes now. He made two good shots in the shooting gallery and felt pleased with himself.

"Let's try the scenic railway. It isn't bad—there's one pretty good dip."

It climbed up, up, up, hesitated like a live thing at the peak to which it was hauled, and then the car in which Bill and Ann were sitting, drove downwards in a giddy swoop that made Ann close her eyes.

She leaned closer to Bill, closer because she was afraid. His arm encircled her, he shouted something in her ears. Up again, down again.

"Here it is now!" Bill shouted. "Hang on!"

A sudden short plunge seemed to hurl them into the pit of the earth, sending the sky rocking around their heads.

"Oh! . . ." Ann almost moaned. "Oh! . . ." She was huddled close to him now. He was laughing, with masculine pity for the fear of women.

"Pretty good, wasn't it? Not scared still, are you?"

She met his eyes. She didn't speak. They stepped out on the platform.

He was smiling down at her flushed cheeks, bright eyes, and tumbled hair.

"You know that right now you look just like—you look like Georgie!"

His voice had begun cheerfully, and died away. His face grew somber and desperate again. Georgie—still thinking of Georgie! Then Ann made up her mind. She would not hesitate or hold back. She would use the last weapon of all. She would let him see how she cared for him, how anxious she was to comfort him. She would show him that tonight—now!

CHAPTER XX.

THEY moved down the platform together. The man in the booth, with a string of tickets falling invitingly from the machine near him, grinned mechanically.

"Try it again, folks. Second time's the big thrill!" he said briskly.

Bill glanced at Ann, but she only shook her head. Her pulses were jumping. No scenic railway could make her heart leap as it was leaping now.

What she had determined upon frightened her, took her breath away. But she must show Bill how she felt, she must make him turn to her in realization and tenderness. And he was brooding now, thinking of Georgie still, as if the thought gnawed at his spirit and would never give him peace.

"Anything you'd particularly like to do?" he asked, but his tone was flat. The joy had gone out of him, and the carelessness that was his charm. No memory of the good shots he had made with a target rifle could cheer him up now.

"What do you want to do, Bill?"

"Oh, I don't know. One thing's about the same as another. I can't stand the Park more than once a season. We might go over and listen to the band."

"No, let's go over there."

"By the lake, you mean?"

She nodded. "Yes, let's just be quiet—and—look at the water and the swans. I always like to watch them when I come here."

A moon had risen, and its pale, soft light made all the twinkling

Seek "Suicide" N. Y., Other Woman There

The search for Frank Fitzpatrick, 32, who deserted his wife and two children in Chicago last September and who had written his wife, Mrs. Helen Fitzpatrick, 418 Lincoln avenue, of his intention to commit suicide, has swung over into New York state, where he is believed to have fled with another woman after planting his hat and coat on the brink of Niagara Falls last November 12.

Mrs. Fitzpatrick received a letter yesterday from a woman employed in the office at Cincinnati where Fitzpatrick formerly worked. She writes that the woman supposed to have accompanied Fitzpatrick is said to be in New York. The woman formerly was employed by Fitzpatrick and his wife says he left that city for Chicago when her attentions became unbearable. Mrs. Fitzpatrick's informant tells that one of the girls in the office received a letter from the woman recently and she believes it was sent from the province of Saskatchewan, Canada. Fitzpatrick's letter declaring his suicidal intent was sent from Toronto, Can., and Mrs. Fitzpatrick identified a photostat copy of the Prince George Hotel register at Toronto where her husband registered with a woman as "M. G. Fleming, Cleveland, O."

The letter from Cincinnati, however, expressed a belief that if Fitzpatrick went to Canada with the woman, he probably became conscience stricken and carried out his intentions of suicide, but then goes on to say that at the home of the woman, the writer was told she was married and traveling in New York state.

City Detectives Patrick Moran and Vincent Cavanaugh have been assigned to the case here and after Mrs. Fitzpatrick identified copies of the hotel register last night, word was sent out to police authorities throughout northwestern New York to be on the lookout for Fitzpatrick.

Agents for the insurance company which carried a policy on Fitzpatrick's life entered the case actively this morning and after interviewing city detectives started in on an investigation of a secretive nature. The name of the insurance company was not divulged.

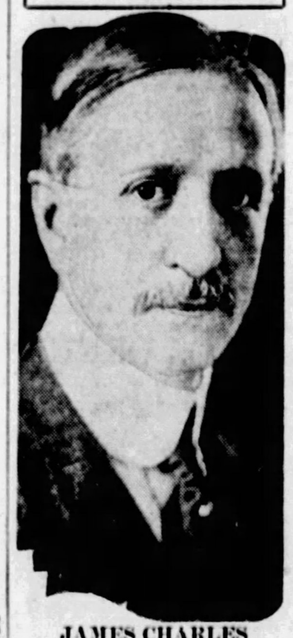
AWARD WOMAN $5,000 FOR CRASH INJURIES

Mrs. Sarah Alice Butler, injured when a truck collided with street car of the Pittsburgh Railways Company in which she was riding, was awarded a $5,000 verdict in Common Pleas Court. The case was tried before Judge Richard W. Martin.

NAME COUNTY PARK DAMAGE VIEWERS

Judge Harry H. Rowand of Common Pleas Court has appointed C. W. Reamer, R. M. Kopp and S. A. Merkel viewers for Babcock boulevard and the public park in McCandless township, to fix damages and benefits growing out of improvements to both.

Vice President



JAMES CHARLES BENNETT

Mr. Bennett, comptroller and secretary of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacing company, was elected vice president at a meeting of the board of directors.

ACCOUNTANTS WILL HEAR MAIN ON TOUR

"Touring the Mississippi Valley With Pittsburgh Business Men" will be the subject of Frank Wilbur Main, at a dinner meeting of the Pittsburgh Chapter of the Pennsylvania Institute of Certified Public Accountants at Hotel Henry tomorrow evening. Mr. Main, a director of the Chamber of Commerce, made the recent tour through Southern cities. Another speaker will be Ernest Crowther, whose subject will be "The Soft Coal Situation."

TROLLEY DOORSTEP RIDER FINED 120 "CAR CHECKS"

Because he had insisted on riding on the doorstep of a street car, George Kroto, 54, of 239 South Euclid avenue, paid a $10 fine—price of 120 car rides—in Central Police Court today.

"ORPHEUS" BEATS DEATH

BOY'S MUSIC SAVES MOTHER'S LIFE

When Mrs. Ethel Baldwin of Long Beach, (Cal.,) sank into a strange coma, after she was told of the death of her husband, physicians battled vainly for 180 hours to bring her back to consciousness. Then friends noticed when sounds of music reached her she fluttered one little finger slightly. With this vestige of hope her son, Thurman Baldiwn (shown above), started playing the violin. The son played on and on, one soft, sweet melody after another, until Mrs. Baldwin finally stirred, opened her eyes and "came back to life." Today she is reported well on the way to recovery.

Boys Pick Grandma Over Their "Daddy"

"Grandmother or daddy?" asked Judge Harry H. Rowand in Common Pleas Court today.

"Grandmother," responded two small boys in unison, and to the grandmother, Mrs. Elizabeth Hunger, 20 Narrow street, Carrick, was awarded the custody of the children, Mart and Bill McDermott, 6 and 8. They had been brought before Judge Rowand after being taken to Cleveland by their father and later brought back to Pittsburgh by their mother, Mrs. Clara McComb.

Mrs. McComb, divorced wife of Martin A. McDermott, whose home is in Cleveland, gave her permission for the father to take the boys to that city. That was in January. Then, dissatisfied, she went to Cleveland a week ago and brought the boys back. And today Judge Rowand decided the boys were bright enough to speak for themselves. Consequently, Santa Claus will visit them in Carrick instead of Cleveland.

BOTH DRIVERS TAKE BLAME; DISCHARGED

Harry Shuster, 24, 5853 Ellsworth avenue, and Adolphe Manske, 29, of 3239 Dobson street, were discharged by Magistrate William Soost in Traffic Court following a collision of their automobiles in Bigelow boulevard Sunday. Neither driver attempted to shelve the blame.

Carrie Nation's Cousin Jailed as Bootlegger

OAKLAND, Cal., Dec. 6.—(INS.)—Intimating that if his second cousin, the late Carrie Nation, who with George Washington made the hatchet famous, were still alive she might, in lieu of a convenient barroom, caress him with her famous implemnt, William Nation today was at librty after serving a term for operating a still.

William never cared much for Carrie—he said as much, and gave reasons:

"I never liked her hooey—that's what it amounted to.

"We were relatives, but I made booze; she destroyed it.

"The nation has adopted Carrie's idea now. I tried to copper it and failed. This ain't a free country."

APPEAL TO FISHER, DAVIS

Twenty mothers, wives of striking miners, have telegraphed Gov. John S. Fisher and Secretary of Labor James J. Davis to intercede in the sale of their home furniture by the Union Collieries Company at Renton, it was learned today.

The mothers, representing 138 families, told Gov. Fisher and Secretary Davis that 650 children will be destitute if the company is allowed to proceed with the sale scheduled for tomorrow. The sale is to satisfy back rentals.

"Our husbands and sons have been out of employment for eight months," the mothers' message read, "and we find ourselves dependent for food, clothing, shelter, medical attention, etc., upon our organization, the United Mine Workers of America. The United Mine Workers requests an extension of time to enable the completion of temporary homes."

Hear Fisher Plans Coal Parley

By International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—Reports reached Washington today that Governors Gore, of West Virginia; Donahey, of Ohio, and Fisher, of Pennsylvania, were planning to call separate conferences between miners and operators in an effort to settle the soft coal strike. These states have been hardest hit by the tie-up which began last April.

Until advised of the outcome of these mediations, the federal government will make no move to get the workers and operators into a joint conference.

The operators, three months ago, turned down a conference call by Gov. Donahey, and the miners later appealed to President Coolidge to summon a joint meeting.

Ann's Spirit Weakens as She Learns That Bill Loves Only Georgie

lights of Hollis Park look garish and tawdry by comparison.

The swans floated gracefully on the dark water. But except for Bill and Ann there was no one to watch them. The benches that fringed the artificial lake were all deserted. The crowd seethed and hummed where the lights were and the barkers sold their wares.

Bill lit a cigaret, flicking the match into the silent water with a snap of his fingers. He was silent.

Ann's fingers stole under the edge of the bench and gripped it, as if she were bracing herself for a physical ordeal.

"So you're still in love with her," she said.

Strange how quiet her voice was, how matter-of-fact!

Stranger still was his surprise. He turned quickly, startled that his thoughts should be so plain. He threw the scarcely smoked cigaret from him with a nervous gesture.

"What do you mean?"

"I mean, you're still in love with Georgie, of course."

"Gosh, Ann, you're wonderful. The way you read my mind. But—but I'm not in love with her."

"You keep thinking about her, Bill—you've been thinking about her all evening."

He seemed grateful for the chance to talk, to unburden himself with confession.

"I don't know what's the matter with me, I swear I don't. You see, last week I thought everything all out. I saw it was useless, and I gave up. I was blue until I did that. And then it was easy. It was just as if I'd never liked her. I felt cheerful, too. And I wondered why it was I used to lie awake at nights and think about her and—and things like that."

"But, Bill, you've been thinking about her tonight."

"I know I have. When she came into the restaurant, I saw her right away. You didn't know that, did you?"

"Oh, yes, I knew."

"Did you?" He looked astonished. "You're so clever, you see everything, Ann."

"As if any girl wouldn't see if she—if she were noticing things."

Bill locked his fingers together. He was silent for a long moment, as if he were trying to arrange his thoughts that were troubled with emotions he could not express.

"I don't know how it was that it all came back. I guess it was just seeing her with that jazz round. Listen! I'd have enjoyed going over and punching him one. Honest! And then it all came came back, and I felt low—I can't tell you how low I felt!"

"You were jealous."

"Jealous? Of him!" He laughed scornfully. "Jealous of a bird like that! No, I was just sore at seeing her play around with him—that was all. And then when she turned her back and wouldn't look our way—I don't know how to tell you—but I just felt—I just felt—"

He stumbled hopelessly and ended his words with a gesture.

"I know, Bill. I know." And Ann was sorry for him, and sorry for herself.

"Gosh, you're a good sport, Ann—to listen to me rave on like this. You certainly are sympathetic. You're wonderful—that's what you are."

"Oh, I'm nothing—it doesn't matter—I—I'd do anything in the world to make you happy."

She looked away suddenly, looked across the black water, with the streaks of moonlight lying on it like sword blades, the swans moving silently on their slow round. He must know, he must understand! Her heart seemed to pound so loudly now that she felt it was audible.

A little tremor ran through her. But presently she looked at him covertly and quickly. His eyes were on the ground. He had not even noticed. He was blind—blind and deaf. Must she tell him bluntly to make him realize?

"I never thought much about love before." He was talking as if to himself. "But you know—I've been pretty lonely. All my relatives are out West. And when I fell for Georgie, well it made things different somehow. I wanted to work and make lots of money. I don't care much now."

"But—but Georgie isn't the only girl in the world."

He looked up, a little startled. "Funny, your saying that! I always thought you wanted Georgie to like me."

"Well, I've changed. I can change, can't I?"

Her voice was unsteady. He had noticed it now.

"What do you mean?"

She tried to answer and could not. Then she turned slowly and deliberately. The moonlight was on her face, on her eyes that burned into his.

He stared hard at her. His hand went up awkwardly, and brushed his hair back from his forehead.

Merely Margy, An Awfully Sweet Girl

Story by Lloyd Mayer — By John Held, Jr.

"Well, my dear, I'm HONestly on the VERGE of collAPSE at this point, no less, because I ACtually had the FUNniest exPErience with that odd YOUTH who ARab and NOIsy tried to get me to LURE into their frsTERnity. You know, my dear, that strange 'PHWHEN' person from BROOKlyn or somewheres? Well, ANYways, it was simply KILLing because you see I had been reading VIolently in this BOOK of MOTHer's about this odd PSYchoanALysis stuff and I was simply MAD to try and PRACtice PSYching somebody because I mean that is practicably the ONly way to get any KICK out of this psychoanALysis business because I mean the only really INT'resting part aBOUT it is to sort of GET people to let you psychoANalyze them, sort of, which means that you have to perSUADE them to sort of TELL you all about their THOUGHTS and all, do you know what I mean? Isn't that an inTRIguing iDEA? Because just THINK how simply FASCinating it would be to sort of really get AT what everybody is THINKing! But when I sort of tried to get this 'PHWHEN' youth to unBURden his SOUL to me, my dear, he suddenly began BLUSHing like NOTHing HUman, which actually LAID me an EGG, my dear, because I ACtually hadn't any IDEA he was that kind of a boy, do you know what I mean?"

LOVE'S EMBERS by Adele Garrison

Absorbing Sequel to "Revelations of a Wife"

Philip Veritzen Evinces Interest in the Transvanians.

I AM afraid that I eyed Philip Veritzen with really feline watchfulness as I told him and Lillian that I was sure the new tenants of "The Larches" were all Transvanians. I remembered his son Noel's naive revelation that his father belonged to that romantic and farsway country which only recently had been brought into unusual prominence by the visit to the United States of its royal family. I knew also, and wondered if Lillian shared my knowledge, of Mr. Veritzen's inordinate interest in the doings of that family and the entertainments given them, even breaking over his invariable attitude of lofty indifference to all social functions and deliberately pulling wires to gain invitations to the few entertainments given the royal guests to which he was not already bidden.

Would Mr. Veritzen be as frank as his son, or would he still keep the secret of his origin which no one of his associates knew, and which I was sure his son would not have revealed except to us at the farmhouse, of whose discretion he was assured?

But whatever effect the name of his native land thus coming surprisingly from my lips may have had upon him, he lost no whit of his poise and he leaned toward me and said with just the conventional intonation of surprise.

"Transvanians? Are you sure? That is most interesting if your surmise is correct. There are very few of them in this country. There were hardly enough to provide a suitable reception for the royal family."

"Yet there were enough of them to stage a picturesque exhibition of prayer for Olina when she fell so ill just before their departure," Lillian commented, and I nodded an assent. Most vividly I remembered the accounts of the sorrow in the little Transvanian colony when they learned that the Princess Olina, eldest daughthe King and Queen, had been stricken with a very serious illness just before the time scheduled for the departure of the royal family. The papers had been filled with the descriptions of the suite fitted up as a small but fully equipped private hospital aboard the ship and of the corps of physicians and nurses which accompanied the stretcher carrying the swathed figure of the young princess aboard ship. The transplanted Transvanians in New York had filled their tiny church to overflowing as they daily sent up prayers for the recovery of their stricken princess.

"Yes, that is true," Mr. Veritzen asserted, then added cynically: "Their petitions evidently didn't do much good. I understand that Olina has not yet fully recovered from that attack. She had to be transferred by stretchers and ambulances from ship to trains and again to her father's palace. But I believe she is recovering now at one of the royal country estates."

Lillian's face expressed something as near impatience at his lengthy answer as her poise and good-breeding permitted. And when he had finished, she promptly seized the reins of conversation.

"Poor thing!" she commented. "I cannot imagine anything more deadly than to be a convalescent at a royal country estate. I'd as soon be in a home for the aged and indigent. But tell me, Madge, what makes you think those new tenants of 'The Larches' are Transvanians? Didn't you say the young mistress of the place denied it?"

"Yes, but most unconvincingly," I returned, and Philip Veritzen leaned forward with a suggestion.

"Why don't you begin at the beginning," he asked, "and tell us all about these new neighbors of yours? Mrs. Underwood is going to have a stroke or something if you don't, and then our outing will be spoiled."

Lillian made a saucy grimace at him.

"Oh, I'll admit that I'm suffering a severe attack of the malady which killed the well-known cat," she said. "The only difference between you and me, Phil, is that I do not admit it."

For the Lovelorn

By ELEANOR GALE

Caddy

DEAR MISS GALE:

I read your advice to the lovelorn and think it is wonderful. I have been called slow by some of the girls in our neighborhood, because I do not like this so-called "petting" at parties and therefore cannot have a good time at them. What would you say to this? CADDY.

Don't mind them when they call you "slow," Caddy. They have a lot more respect for you than their words indicate. You are quite right in not liking petting.

H. G. H.

DEAR MISS GALE:

About a year ago I met a young man and in that time we became good friends. He is a doctor. As Christmas is not so far off I am considering a nice present for him, but I am puzzled as to what I should give him. We are not engaged—just real good friends. Any suggestion on your part will surely be appreciate, Miss Gale, and I thank you very much. H. G. H.

Books, attractive book ends, a silver pencil—any such thing would be all right.

A Dark Brunnette

DEAR MISS GALE:

Have been reading your column for three years or more. I am in trouble, so I'm coming to you for help. I am 17 years of age and in my third year of high school. Here is my trouble: Recently I went to a "mov" and she said to avoid fellows by the name of Joe. Later I met a fellow by the name of Joe, and I like him very much. He is two years my senior. I don't know whether to keep my friendship with him or drop him. Please advise me.

A DARK BRUNETTE.

I shouldn't refuse the friendship of this boy for any such reason, my dear.

Managers To Rent Garden

By ED FRAYNE,
Universal Service Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK, Dec. 6.—Led Peter Flynn and James Joy Johnson, managers, have agreed to pay Tex Rickard $20,000 for the use of Madison Square Garden on the night of January 27.

In the agreement Rickard stipulated that six heavyweights who are under contract to him could not be used. He named Gene Tunney, Jack Dempsey, Tom Heeney, Jack Sharkey, Paulino Uzcudun and Johnny Risko.

Flynn and Johnston made it plain that their contemplated show would consist entirely of heavyweights. The managers claimed that Rickard is overlooking many promising heavyweights in his elimination tournament. They assert the Johnny Grosso, Benny Touchstone, Jack Dervals, Knute Hansens and Joe Sekyras are just as popular with the public as the men that Rickard has elected to build up.

The tentative card submitted yesterday was as follows:

Knute Hansen vs. Jack Renault.
Phil Scott vs. Jack Derval.
Joe Sekyra vs. Benny Touchstone.

Pitt Gets Title Trophy

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 6.—(INS.)—The football warriors of the University of Pittsburgh have been awarded the Joseph H. Jolley Eastern championship football cup so highly coveted by Eastern gridiron teams during the past eight years. The award was announced at a board of directors meeting of the veteran athletes of Philadelphia.

OUTDOOR SPORTS -:- -:- -:- By TAD

Andy's Labor Is Rewarded

By JESS CARVER.

THOSE western folk, the Shriners of the Pacific, who selected Andy Kerr of the Wash.-Jeff., Pitt and Stanford Kerrs to pick and coach and chaperon the all-Eastern football team that is to play an all-Western eleven in 'Frisco on Christmas Day, certainly made no mistake.

The genial Andy, at present head coach of football and basketball at W. & J., where he has just engineered his eleven through an undefeated season, has gathered together a fine array of football talent and as strong a squad as might be gleaned from the eastern sections of the land. (By eastern is meant all the land lying between the Rocky Mountains and Broadway's night clubs).

Andy will have men of the caliber of Capt. Jack Connors, of New York U.; Lane, of Dartmouth; Douds, Pauly and Amos, of his own Presidents; Atkinson, of Lafayette; Caldwell, of Yale; Grigsby, of Georgetown, and maybe Herb Joesting, of Minnesota, to throw against what ever they gather up out on the coast. Had it not been for the fact that the Panthers of Pitt are to play the Rose Bowl game at Pasadena New Year's Day, Gibby Welch, Andy Cutler and Bill Kern of Pitt would have been invited.

CHARLIE BOWSER, player-coach of the Pitt Alumni eleven, is seeking vainly for a few linesmen to provide a forward wall for his seven score backs against the Varsity Saturday. If he so desires, this column can put him next to a fine line prospect, though said prospect didn't play for Pitt.

John Eric Weibel, line coach at Duquesne and former star guard at Notre Dame during the reign of the "Four Horsemen," is in good shape, and for a doughnut and a cup of coffee, will essay to hold down one of the guard positions on the Alumni team, though if he does, the name will have to be changed from Alumni to All-Stars. Mr. Weibel would like nothing better than to get a chance to feel out this vaunted Pitt team, of which he has heard so much and, due to his duties at Duquesne, seen so little.

THE biggest event on the week's calendar for Tech is the annual football banquet, scheduled for Saturday at the William Penn. This banquet, an annual affair, is always one of the leading events attached to the Tartan gridiron campaign.

John L. Porter, a member of the Carnegie board of trustees, will be master of ceremonies and introduce the speakers of the occasion, among whom will be Advisory Coach Walter P. Steffen, Head Coach Bob Waddell, Graduate Manager Clarence G. (Buddy) Overend, Dr. Marks, team physician and assistant coach, and Al Irwin and Paul Allison, freshman coaches.

A captain is to be elected by the lettermen following the banquet. Howard Harpster, brilliant quarterback, is the leading candidate to succeed Purl Anderson, who led this year's eleven.

THE action of the West Virginia Athletic Board of Control yesterday in re-electing Ira Rodgers to the post of head coach of football yesterday did not come as any surprise. Ira's feat in whipping the faltering Mountaineers into shape and holding Wash-Jeff even Thanksgiving Day was enough to win him a life contract at West Virginia. They forgot all of the disappointments of the season in celebrating that feat.

However, I am informed that even though Rodgers had lost that game, that he was to be given another "shot" at the job and that he would have been returned to his post again next year. His team showed enough good football in the last three or four games of the season to warrant his being retained.

Stanford Starts Practice for Pitt Game

STANFORD, Cal., Dec. 6.—(INS.)—The Cardinals of Stanford today were limbering up preparatory to going into hard training for their contest with the Pittsburgh Panthers at Pasadena on January 2.

Football Is More Brutal Than Boxing--Gene

JERSEY CITY, N. J., Dec. 6.—(AP.)—Football with its broken backs, broken necks, broken limbs and other permanent injuries is much more brutal than boxing, is the opinion of Gene Tunney. He told the Men's Club of the Lafayette Reformed Church last night that the attention of spectators at a football game is centered on the ball and for that reason the great brutality of the game is not noticed, whereas the attention of spectators at a boxing match is centered on the blows.

Tunney said that he is convinced that if colleges gave boxing the opportunity it would gain greater favor with the public than football, for boxing tends to greater individuality, creativeness, courage and manliness.

NEW YORK, Dec. 6.—(AP.)—Gene Tunney addressed the boys of Riverdale-On-the-Hudson Country School yesterday and Headmaster Frank S. Hackett characterized the talk as the best speech for boys he had ever heard.

SPORT COMMENT by JAMES J. LONG

AS THE scene of the annual meeting of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues (the federation of all the minor leagues in the organized game), Dallas, Tex., today becomes the center of interest and activity in the baseball world

Not only will representatives of all the leagues and many of the clubs in the minor division of Baldom be gathered there for their yearly business convention, which is scheduled to last through today, tomorrow and Thursday, but the presidents and managers of a number of big league clubs, umpires, scouts, and baseball men in general, also will be on the ground.

THE minor league assemblage each year comes in for a large share of the attention of major league fans, chiefly for the reason that there is a possibility of some player deals developing.

These may include not alone exchanges of only passing interest between major and minor league clubs, and the placing of some surplus major material with clubs in the brush belt, but also a real major league trade or two when the managers of some of the big teams get together and have a chance to talk business.

Even if swaps of the latter and more important sort are not actually consummated at the minor league gathering, it often happens that the groundwork is laid there for dickers to be completed later.

So it is possible that proposals will be made in Dallas that will culminate in real deals when the major leagues hold their annual meetings in New York next week.

EVIDENCE that the Pittsburgh club is one major outfit that is not contemplating the making of any deals during the Dallas pow-wow is contained in the fact that none of the Pirate officials will be present at at the Texas meeting.

Manager Owen Bush, after first concluding that nothing could be gained by making the trip, later decided to attend, but since putting through the Cuyler-Adams-Scott trade he has changed his mind and will not go to Dallas.

Donie figures that a better opportunity for the dickers that he has in mind will present itself at the major league meetings in New York, beginning next Monday, and accordingly he will leave here for Gotham Sunday night with President Barney Dreyfuss and Secretary S. E. Watters.

HOW to keep a football team anywhere near a satisfactory playing edge from November 24 to January 2 without running the risk of any of the players being injured, and meanwhile to take them on the long trip across the continent for a game on the latter date, is about the toughest contract for a coach that could be imagined.

That's the task with which Dr. J. B. Sutherland is now wrestling at Pitt. The Panther coach has carefully avoided scrimmaging his men. He has been merely running the first and second teams through light sig-

By CARL W. SHATTO.

THE Pirates will attempt to get the range on the New York Rangers at Duquesne Garden tonight, and if the dope runs in its recent untrue form, some obscure Pittsburgh skater will break the altitude record and the Bucs will take the league pacesetters over the rocky road to defeat.

To most followers of the Pirate icemen it must appear that anyone predicting a Pittsburgh victory over New York's high-powered sextet should have his head examined, but the more optimistic call to mind the fine showing of the men of Cleghorn against the circuit's best, and satisfy themselves with a raucous laugh.

Yes, against the weaker teams the Blue and Gold icemen have appeared extremely weak, but these same skaters held the Boston Bruins, the Rangers' closest rivals in the race to the top, to a tie score, and forced the world champion Ottawa Senators to go at top speed throughout to eke out triumph by a slim margin. The Pirates appear to be a combination that thrives on adversity, and they should not want for opposition tonight.

The big gun in the last fight here, against Boston, was Duke McCurry. The Iron Duke, of whom little was expected, was shoved into the starting lineup only after men heralded as stars had failed and the situation had become so bad that it appeared to Coach Cleghorn that any change must be for the best. McCurry performed in a manner that was sensational at times and very effective at all times. It was his fine work that gave the Pirates a "punch," and Cleghorn may do further experimenting in an effort to find another man who can scale the heights.

In the matter of condition, the Pirates should enjoy a decided advantage. The Bucs have been idle since last Thursday, whereas the LAST season an ordinary preliminary team satisfied to play second fiddle to the J. J. Mieles, champions of the Pittsburgh and Ohio Valley League, the Siano Club, as a result of making several important replacements and the addition of Harry (Cutsey) Levine as coach has bolstered its lineup to a degree where it ranks with the strongest teams operating in Western Pennsylvania this winter.

Strengthening its lineup where necessary, the Sianos have succeeded in forming a winning floor combination that promises to go far in the P. & O. League race. The team has shown steady improvement under the excellent coaching of Harry Levine, former University of Pittsburgh and Coffey Club star, losing one game in three starts and that by a one-point margin.

COACH LEVINE has the knack of developing good floor machines in this section, disproving the old axiom that successful players do not make successful mentors.

Following his departure from the Coffey Club, with which team he ranked with the best players of the district, Levine coached at Irene Kaufmann Settlement and immediately turned that institution into a first-class basketball center, three of his teams winning local amateur championships.

Levine then went to the Young Men's Hebrew Association, where in one year he turned out one of the best amateur quintets in Western Pennsylvania.

THE Sianos, flushed with their fine showing while serving as the preliminary attraction to the J. J. Mieles last year, started work this year to make themselves one of the leading floor attractions. That they have succeeded in winning a large supporting cast is easily shown by the large crowds that turn out for their weekly attractions at Columbus Temple.

Signing several players of the Mieles and a few of the Columbus Templers, the Sianos added the needed strength to make it a first-class club.

However, the real reason for the Wonder How Much They Made On The "Gate?"

By Universal Service

NEW YORK, Dec. 6.—It seems that the Tunneys and Dempseys have been fighting a long times.

According to Volume 154, Massachusetts Law reports, one Tunney and one Dempsey squared off in a court of law some years ago. Tunney broke a plate of glass belonging to Dempsey.

Prof. Wilkinson, of the New Jersey Law School, revealed this forerunner of the modern pugilistic dispute to his students in class yesterday.

"The LONG COUNT" by Jack Dempsey

CHAPTER II.

SOME of the newspapers quoted Gene Tunney as saying, after our battle in Chicago:

"I wasn't hurt when I went down in the seventh round and, if necessary, I could have climbed back to my feet with the count of 'one.'"

I doubt very much whether Tunney ever made such a statement; I doubt it very much because Tunney is not a humorist.

When Tunney went down in that seventh round, he went down in a state of collapse. The two left hand punches to his chin, plus the right hand drive, certainly had enough power in them to drop any living human. And, in fairness to Tunney's ability to take a beating, I'll say I don't think any man, other than Tunney, would have come up from that floor in less than 30 seconds after those punches landed.

Tunney was hurt—and hurt plenty—when he went down.

The position of Tuuney on the floor seems to be proof conclusive in the minds of impartial ring experts, that Tunney was temporarily paralyzed. For when he collapsed, his left arm flopped over the rope. Don't get the idea he was holding onto the rope then. He was too completely out. His arm was draped over the strand in helpless fashion—and so it remained for many, many seconds.

TUNNEY COMPLETELY OUT

No one who has seen the moving or the still pictures of that fight and noticed the position of Tunney's legs during the first 10 SECONDS that he was on the floor, takes the viewpoint that there was enough life in those legs up to that time to enable Tunney to climb back to his feet.

Tunney was OUT COMPLETELY for 10 SECONDS—and more.

Between the time that Tunney hit the floor and when Referee Dave Barry actually started his count, a matter of at least six seconds had elapsed. As Barry's arm went up and down over Tunney, I watched Tunney closely; studied him to learn what shape he was in—and what chance he had of making a recovery and getting up.

Through the 14 years that I've been in this fight racket, I've had quite a few men on the floor. I don't pose as an expert in the matter of how badly that fellow is hurt, but I believe that I know I can size up a fallen man's chances pretty well.

I felt, as I watched Tunney, that even with the help of those six seconds that the charitable Barry had given him, the chances were slim that Tunney could recover in time to beat Barry's count.

BARELY BEAT LONG COUNT

It was not until Barry had reached his personal count of "six," which was about 12 seconds after Tunney went down, that a look of intelligence came back to Tunney's eyes. At the count of "seven" he seemed to be trying to collect his senses and at "eight" he was doing the same thing. As the pictures will show, Tunney had not made any definite effort to arise with the count of "eight" and was not on his [illegible] his feet

Stanford's Backfield Stars Who Play Pitt Panthers in Coast Game

Second Beats Gemas

By HARRY KECK,
Sun-Telegraph Sports Editor.

TO begin with, as one ringsider put it, the heavyweight show at Motor Square Garden last night demonstrated that Gene Tunney's title is safe for at least another year.

And, in the second place, the winner of the main bout lost. You can't tell the cash customers anything else.

Emmett Rocco of Ellwood City, the youthful Tarzan of the ring, who has been having things pretty much his own way chopping down aspiring young talent and hasbeens, was returned the victor over George Gemas of Philadelphia, and formerly of Connellsville, via the technical knockout route in the fifth round when Gemas' chief second, Young Philadelphia Jack O'Brien, the former lightweight boxer and brother of the original Philadelphia Jack O'Brien, tossed a towel into the ring with both boxers woozy and Rocco's left eye swollen up the size of a toy balloon. In fact, the optic was in such condition that it is doubtful if the commission would have permitted Emmett to come up for the sixth round and the bout thus would have ended in a technical knockout victory for Gemas.

TIDE SUDDENLY TURNS

Gemas plainly registered his disgust as the signal of defeat fluttered into the ring and the crowd was loud in its denunciation of his second's action, which plainly was one for the "book."

The fight was all Rocco's until the fateful last round. Fighting a la Luis Firpo, he had no trouble pounding away

French to Lead Crimson Team In '28

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Dec. 6.—(AP.)—Arthur E. French, Jr., '29, of Winchester was elected captain of the Harvard football team for 1928 yesterday. He played at halfback and quarterback this season and was on the varsity eleven last year.

ITHACA, N. Y., Dec. 6.—(AP.)—Dudley Nelson Schoales, of Cleveland Heights, O., a junior and end for the past two years, has been elected captain of the 1928 football team of Cornell University.

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Dec. 6.—(AP.)—Clarence Keefer, of Cameron, was elected captain of the Mountaineers for the 1928 campaign at the annual football banquet held here last night.

ELKINS, W. Va., Dec. 6.—(AP.)—Ralph Mattison of La Crosse, Wis., has been elected captain of Davis and Elkins College football team. Mattison is a guard.

MICHIGAN, IOWA, LEAD GRIDIRON 'REVOLT'

CHICAGO, Dec. 6.—(AP.)—The two-team football system, long talked of both in the Western Conference and in other sections, is to become a reality in the Big Ten next fall, with Michigan taking the initiative. Iowa also has announced definite plans for a second team.

Fielding H. Yost, director of athletics, and Dr. Clarence Cook Little, president of Michigan, have announced that games for the second Michigan team are being sought among both conference and non-conference schools.

As most conference teams have completed their 1928 schedules, and none have yet indicated any intention to follow the Michigan system, the two teams will be rated as first and second for the 1928 season, the Michigan authorities said, but eventually they are to be developed into squads of equal power.

Wisconsin is considering the "two-team" plan also. George Little, director of athletics, and Glen Thistlethwaite, football coach, laid the plan before the recent Western Conference annual meeting and got a ruling from the faculty athletic committee that would permit the dual system.

George Huff, director of athletics, and Robert C. Zuppke, football coach at the University of Illinois, were a bit skeptical of the success of the "two-team" plan.

ZUPPKE SKEPTICAL

"Nobody knows whether the two-team plan is good or not," Zuppke said, "because nobody knows what it will lead to."

HAVEY BOYLE.

FANS will read with interest Jack Dempsey's side in the recent unpleasantness in Chicago with Gene Tunney. Tunney's side already has been set forth. All of it is interesting, but that many opinions will be changed is doubtful. After getting all the testimony those fans who thought Tunney got a long count will continue thinking that way and those fans who thought Tunney defeated Dempsey will stick to their opinion. The result, perhaps, will be that with the question still undecided, the kind Mr Rickard will decide to settle the matter, once and for all time, by rematching the two boys next summer. And it is not altogether improbable that perhaps this possibility is in the back of the heads of Dempsey and Tunney.

There are many, many persons who having seen both bouts between these two fighters will say: "I wouldn't walk across the street to see them" but they may change their minds as the months roll on. In these days when the clever boys who pass out advertising and publicity can make us buy almost anything they want us to buy it is not unlikely that in a period of six months the country will be hot all over again for the third meeting between Dempsey and Tunney.

Nor will the 25 per cent on fight tickets costing more than $5 deter the multitudes, because, while not altogether sound economically, it is nevertheless fundamentally human to take some pride in paying a very high price for a fight ticket. Possibly, the 25 per cent increase, which, of course, will be neatly passed onto the consumer, will make the whole thing even more attractive. It is a fallacy to say that the people like to be mulcted, but it does appear to be a truth that the people want what they want when they want it, and no amount of persuasion, however artful or however logical, will sway them. This is not argument for a third meeting of the two big boys. It is simply a peering into the future, with an observation or two on what is sometimes called the sometimes human race.

PERHAPS, by the time of the next meeting television will have supplanted the verbal reports by radio. Senatore Marconi, father of the wireless, looks forward to the time when people in Pittsburgh, say, will gather in a theater downtown, and there see blow by blow account of a fight, say, in New York or Chicago. It will be better than the films which now are viewed after we all know the result of the contest. Imagine the thrill of seeing by picture the contest as it moves ahead, without knowing how it nal drills on alternate evenings, and the closest approach to scrimmage which they will undergo will be experienced in the game against the Old Timers at the Stadium Saturday afternoon.

THE possibility of keeping a gridiron aggregation in form from Thanksgiving Day until January 2, a period of 39 days or almost six weeks in this instance, is a matter where you find many doubts creeping in when you come to consider it. Many an old football man will tell you unhesitatingly that it just can't be done.

And even if keeping his men on a good playing edge for that length of time were possible, Coach Sutherland has some additional problems to deal with.

There is the long trip to be figured, and on top of that the change in climate.

There is a vast difference between weather conditions in Western Pennsylvania and in California around the time of the game, and many a player who has traveled from the East to play in the warm California climate about the first of the year has found himself all in long before the end of the first half.

SOME football men estimate that the prolonged wait, the transcontinental trip and the playing in California's climate will subtract fully 25 per cent from the strength of the Pitt team as displayed on Thanksgiving Day.

Beating the acclimated Stanford players with 25 per cent of Pitt's strength gone is not going to be any part of an easy thing. On the contrary, the Panthers will have to rise to unusual heights for an Eastern team in California in order to escape defeat.

ON PAPER the locals looked like a better team than Stanford, but with all the handicaps considered they will have the toughest kind of a time to come through unbeaten.

Incidentally, don't overlook the fact that Sutherland has had no chance to scout Stanford, while Pop Warner was here on Thanksgiving Day to scout Pitt and took plenty of notes. It was long said in football that when Warner's own team was reasonably strong he could beat practically any eleven that he had scouted himself.

will end. And, even allowing for the reported low interest in a third Dempsey-Tunney meeting, it is our notion that a theater offering such an attraction could charge fancy prices and have only about half enough seats. Boxing will be more adjustable to this sort of television exhibition than any other sport, because the action is confined to a relatively small area. It would be difficult to put baseball or football on the air in this pictorial way.

TO DIGRESS, a moment the only trouble about the coming of television is that that fellow on the other end of the 'phone who accepts almost any old excuse you give him about this and that, will through television detect one's lie face, as it were. Thus, while it will be inconvenient to those of us who tell lies, television, after a time, may start a new style. Imagine what a funny world if everyone were to start telling the truth. In the abstract truth is a fine quality, but somehow we find the most disagreeable persons are those who tell one the truth about one's self.

AS EVERYONE else has said by this time, we suppose, no one begrudges Paul Waner the most valuable player prize. What is meant by that is the man who says it does not begrudge it to him. It would not be wholly true, however, to say that the opinion is unanimous. There are one or two boys who believe that Pie Traynor, instead of getting only the 18 votes cast for him, should have received the prize awarded Paul Waner. The argument is that third base is more important than right field, and since prizes usually are awarded to men who have helped their clubs win pennants, the fact that Traynor in the last month of season helped far more than Waner did, in a critical time, to win the flag should have been considered. In this argument we prefer to be neutral, as both boys are deserving. It is, by the way, one of the few arguments this column has not got into lately. Perhaps it is all for the best. Diplomacy involves some facing both ways, but in its favor one may say it is at times quite convenient.

FIGHT

to the head and body with his club-like right and had Gemas in trouble from the very start from the ponderous blows. Gemas had a cut under his left eye and appeared ticketed for Dreamland as the fourth round ended. However, he caught Rocco by surprise with a rush across the ring at the bell for the fifth round. A swishing right did the damage to Rocco's eye and another right to the chin shook up the rugged Italian.

Gemas fought to make the most of his big moment and crowded Rocco half way outside the ropes and kept blasing away. He finally tired and Rocco got a breathing spell and began to come back. Emmett plodded and pounded to the body and head and Gemas broke ground. However, George seemed to be merely leading Emmett into a trap for another surprise attack and was loading up a right hand punch as his second became excited and tossed in the token of surrender. Then the boo from the crowd and a cheer for the loser. The time of the round was two minutes, 20 seconds. Forty seconds more of fighting and the result would have been reversed with Rocco's eye swelling up more and more with each fleeting second.

Rocco weighed 150 pounds against 152 for Gemas, but appeared, because of his stockiness and greater strength, to be at least 20 pounds the heavier.

CRUTCHFIELD BEATS POLO

Marco Polo, highly-touted puncher from McKees Rocks, lacked aggressiveness and lost the decision to Kid Crutchfield, Negro of the Hill, in the eight-round semi-final. Polo, former sparring partner of Jack Sharkey, showed unmistakable signs of greenness before the experienced Crutchfield and wasted a lot of punches shooting for the latter's hurled chin. "Crutch" shaped up to build as another Langford or Walcott, and by continually forcing the fighting won the unanimous decision of the judges. Polo made a strong finish in the last round, but it was too late to save him from defeat. He weighed 176 pounds against 182 for Crutchfield.

Rough-and-ready Jack O'Connell of Cleveland, 172½ pounds, carried too many guns for Stanley Simmons of the South Side, 171¾, in the second bout and won the referee's decision after the judges disagreed. O'Connell won the first two rounds, but Simmons had him out on his feet in the third, only to be held even in the next round and beaten in the last two. Stanley was badly used up at the finish. He had cuts over both eyes, his lips were gashed and he was bleeding from the nose.

DUNN SECONDS PAIR

Ray Crawford, novice light-heavyweight of McKeesport, handily fought and clowned his way to victory over Joe Archer of Johnstown in the six-round opener. He scored a knockdown for a count of eight in the first round. Crawford weighed 175 pounds and Archer 165½.

The crowd was one of the smallest of the season. Red Robinson and Joe Keally divided the refereeing, the judges were Bull Brown and Jack Simco and A. C. Couch was the timekeeper.

Jimmy Dunn of Cleveland, veteran manager, seconded both Rocco and O'Connell.

FOOTBALL

The "two-team" plan is a fine thing for schools with big undergraduate enrollments, A. A. Stagg, of Chicago, dean of the Big Ten coaches, said, but not for him. He pointed out that conference rules specify football games on eight days of the fall term, with no limit on the number of games a team may play on each day, if it wishes. One of the teams always will be regarded as the varsity and the other as the second team, Stagg said, for conference championship purposes.

The system has its advantages in giving opportunities for more students to play, Stagg said, but with a small enrollment he was sure he wouldn't have enough good material to put a second team in the field next fall.

Minnesota has no two-team plans for 1928, Fred Luehring, director of athletics said, adding that this must not be taken to mean that the experiment might not be tried there next fall.

"How successful the plan will be remains to be seen," Luehring said, "but it is likely that most schools will give it a trial within a year or so."

ARCHIE COMPSTON MAY PLAY HAGEN IN SOUTH

NEW YORK, Dec. 6.—(AP.)—Archie Compston, British professional who played here with the British Ryder Cup team, is en route to Los Angeles to participate in the $10,000 golf tournament. He said he hoped to face Walter Hagen, Professional Golf Association champion, in a match in Florida this winter.

RADIO IS BETTER WITH BATTERY POWER

Smooth as cream

THERE is no thick and thin, no rich and lean in the current provided by dry batteries. Right down to the last minute and the last milliampere, it is pure DC, Direct Current, that flows through your radio tubes noiselessly, steadily. No turbid rushing, gurgling, humming. No peak and valley vigor. Battery power is independent power, and radio reception reflects its perfection, its freedom from disturbances from outside.

For the cream of the cream in radio batteries buy the Eveready Layerbilt "B" Battery No. 486, made by a patented exclusive process. Built in layers that occupy all available space inside the case, giving you more active materials than any other battery of equal size, and therefore providing more electricity. Actually the most economical battery you can buy. It really does last longer.

A. C. Package for adapting Radiola 28 for A. C. operation with RCA Loudspeaker 104 . . . . . $35

THE 200 electrical and acoustical engineers in the service of the Radio Corporation of America have achieved in Radiola 17, Radiola 28 and Radiola 30A the simplified socket-power operation that has been their goal since the first Radiolas were designed.

Radiola 28 employs the famous RCA Super-Heterodyne circuit and is therefore super-selective. For those desiring a custom-built cabinet model of the Super-Heterodyne with the loudspeaker in the cabinet, the new Radiola 30A has been added to the RCA line.

Radiola 17—the first to employ the new RCA alternating current Radiotrons — rightly deserves to be called a "wonder box." Once connected with your electric light circuit, and a good loudspeaker (like RCA Model 100A) it is as simple to operate as an electric fan.

There are other tried, tested and perfected Radiolas in the complete line offered by RCA, ranging from $69.50 to $895. They are designed for all methods of operation and all requirements of location.

Any RCA Authorized Dealer will gladly demonstrate these wonderful instruments for you—and install one in your home before Christmas.

OLYMPICS TO COST U. S. $400,000

Sandlot Grid Season Will Continue Until Weather Gets Too Warm

★ SUN-TELEGRAPH ★ SPORTS ★

Funds Drive Is Outlined

NEW YORK, Dec. 6.—It will cost $400,000 to send a team of athletes to the Olympic games at Amsterdam, Holland next July.

Gen. McArthur and his associates of the American Olympic committee have so estimated and their estimate is not extravagant even though close to $500,000 seems, offhand, like a vast amount to expend for the representation of this country in an athletic meet in which most of the countries of this globe take part.

This small fortune will be raised as far as possible in pennies.

Contrary to other years when money was raised to send the American teams abroad the plan this year will be much wider in scope. Every city with a population of 25,000 or more will be asked to do its share. It has been decided also that the quota for each city be one penny for each human of its population.

By a little process in arithmetic this means 40,000,000 pennies.

A little more arithmetic shows that a city with a population of 25,000 will be expected to subscribe $250; a city of 50,000 will be counted on for $500; a city with 100,000 will be counted on to furnish $1,000, and so on.

HOCKEY

Rangers tonight will be called upon to play their third hard game in the last four days. Not, however, that the Gothamites are not well fortified for a long siege. In Bill Cook and Boucher they have two of the league's leading scorers and fastest skaters, and their defense has turned back almost every thrust. In Johnson, too, they have the most penalized man in the league, a man who has spent more than half an hour in the penalty box, a man who leads all rivals for this doubtful honor by almost two to one.

Colean and Ake, comedy skaters who take their comedy seriously, will help to entertain.

The probable lineup:

PIRATES.		RANGERS
Worters	G	Chabot
Langlois	D	Johnson
Smith	D	Bourgault
Milks	C	Boucher
Darragh	W	J. Cook
McCurry	W	F. Cook

Pirate scores—Drury, White, Rothschild, Arbour, Cotton and McKinnon. Rangers—Gray, Murdock, Boyd, Thompson and Callaghan. Time of game—8:30. Referee—Louis Berlinquette.

"The Long Count"

By JACK DEMPSEY

until Barry was about sounding "nine."

If Tunney could have climbed back to his feet as soon as he went down, I'll say that he took the wildest chance any ringman ever took in all history when he delayed making a real motion to get up until the count of "nine."

Tunney is a smart fighter, and because he is just that, I feel that any story that deals with his ability to get up at the count of "one" or at the unofficial count of "ten" or "twelve" in that fight, is completely discounted by the position he was in up to the time the referee had counted "eight" over him.

A smart fighter who is down and who is able to get up always gets himself into the position where he can leap to his feet after the count of "nine" and before the count of "ten" possibly can be sounded. Usually he gets his legs in such position that he can spring from the floor in less than a second, or he gets on one knee so he can leap up into fighting position in a fraction of a second.

CLAIMS GENE HELPLESS

I've never seen a smart fighter—or even a boob—who didn't do just that—if he was able to do so. Yet Tunney, a cagey ringman, did nothing of the sort. What's the answer? Either Tunney was too helpless to get "set" for the upward leap, or he was taking a long gamble for grandstand purposes.

Inasmuch as Tunney is not a grandstander, and does nothing for theatrical effect, and inasmuch as he is not a fellow who will gamble with anything so precious as a world's championship—well, the answer must be that Tunney, after being on the floor 12 to 14 seconds was STILL UNABLE TO PREPARE TO JUMP UP.

I have said that it seemed to me that between the count of "nine" and when Tunney actually got to his feet and was back in fighting position, two or more seconds elapsed; that Barry withheld dropping his arm for the count of "10" all during the time Tunney was scrambling to his feet. I repeat just that.

I don't know whether Tunney actually said he could have climbed up at "one." But if he did—and he thinks he could have, despite the evidence of a paralyzed condition for at least 10 seconds—well, then, I'll say that the age of miracles is still with us.

excellent showing of the team is Coach Levine, who turned a mediocre outfit into a first-class combination.

The Sianos gave a demonstration of their punch last night when they overtook an eight-point lead to defeat the St. Catherine's quintet in a P. & O. League contest.

DRIBBLES

The Enoch Rauhs open their season tonight at Columbus Temple when they clash with the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie team, first-half champions of the Commercial-Industrial League last winter. The Rauhs have completed six weeks of intensive training and will take the floor in excellent condition. The Rauhs will start with Serbin and Miller at forwards, M. Paris at center, and W. Paris and Levine at guards.

The Pioneer Catholic Lyceum League will start its season tomorrow night when St. Michaels of the South Side plays St. Canice at the South Side Market House.

The Knickerbockers evidently have no intention of slackening their pace in the West Penn League. The Strippers handed the Trinity Church team a 19-point defeat last night for their fourth successive victory.

The Braddock Falcons will meet the North Braddock Collegians on the Falcon floor tonight, marking the opening of the former's home season.

RESUME ROLLER-SKATING

Roller-skating will be resumed at Motor Square Garden this evening following a shutdown for this sport since the Ford exhibition last week.

hub deep in snow

but no trouble starting the motor with this new winter medium oil

WITH the average oil of today do you believe you could start your motor readily if a severe blizzard encased it with snow and ice? Probably not. But you could do it with the new Atlantic Winter Medium. It has been proved repeatedly.

Not even ordinary light, thin oil can equal this remarkable new medium-bodied oil for easy starting. And Atlantic Winter Medium also means that your motor gets the efficient lubrication only the heavier bodied oils can give.

Never before have you been able to procure an oil so thoroughly combining the qualities for easy starting and assured lubrication.

Atlantic Winter Medium is an exclusive Atlantic accomplishment. It has a paraffine base (longest wearing motor oil base known)—with the congealing tendencies of paraffine base oil completely conquered. It marks the first time that a medium-bodied paraffine base oil has been made practical for winter use.

Put Atlantic Winter Medium in your crankcase now, and this will be the first time in your experience that your motor has come through the trying days of winter with all the vigor and smoothness it has now; and starting troubles will be as trivial as in the sunny days of Indian summer.

Atlantic 600 Transmission Oil
—a companion for Atlantic Winter Medium

A lubricant for transmissions and differentials that is quite as remarkable as Atlantic Winter Medium is for motors. The extraordinary fluidity at zero of Atlantic 600 Transmission Oil, combined with its stability of "body," makes it an ideal lubricant at any weather temperature. Gears shift easily on coldest days.

Alice Brady Preaches Sermon; Sinners Are Paid to Be Saved In "The Ark," Drama in Pitt

By GEORGE SEIBEL

ALICE BRADY, who has developed into an emotional actress of genuine power, made her first appearance last night in a play that has been under way only three weeks, "The Ark" it is called, and it is the work of John Meehan and Robert Riskin, who have tried to dramatize a woman evangelist. If it were not for the conventional love story with the conventional happy ending, the play would rank as rich satire. But the dramatists evidently thought it their duty to save their heroine from the sawdust trail, and they could not bear to have the affection of a lifetime bestowed by her upon her admirer be wasted. So all misunderstandings are cleared up—and the question whether Brooklyn will be saved next week is doubtfully answered.

GEORGE SEIBEL

The Rev. Robert MacDonald has two daughters, both in love with Sammy, the rather wild son of the man who is the pillar of the congregation. When the pastor loses his pastorate in the first act, because he hasn't the "punch" any longer required by the "business," the elder sister—that is Alice Brady's role—is befriended by a book-agent, who is selling Bibles, and in the next act we find her a year later as a full-fledged Evangelist with a staff like a three-ring circus.

The sinners who receive a salary to be saved, the cripple with a crutch who experiences the healing power of the gospel, the choir that bursts out into a hymn of praise every time one of the "saved" has given testimony—all these are managed with considerable skill and carry conviction. It is the love-story that doesn't fit in, somehow, and when the younger daughter blurts out to her sister that she has had an affair with the hero, we do not believe her, and when later on she admits she has been lying, we do not believe her again.

The second act is powerful, winding up with the scene in the big gospel tent, where Alice Brady preaches a revival sermon with all the soul-saving fervor of a real evangelist. After this scene the third act with its laboured explanations and sugar-coating discounts the vivid impression. The heroine has in the end neither the sinister glory of a conscious charlatan nor the faint halo of an unconscious apostle. She is just a woman, doomed by the dramatists to marry the man she always loved.

This strained plot is worked out by a group of splendidly conceived characters splendidly played. Miss Brady, above all, has a deep insight into the psychology of religious theatrics. She makes the character of the Evangelist entirely convincing, and her sermon is delivered with torrential power. Next to her stands Charles Bickford as the manager of the gospel show, while George Alison as her father gives a fine portraiture of a sincere clergyman of the old school.

Robert Ames as the hero and Mildred McLeod as the sister have parts which it is difficult to make credible, but they succeed in saving them from artificiality. George Lessey as the business man who rules the church, Dorothy Estabrook as the secretary of the Evangelist, Eugene Donovan as a converted prize-fighter, are all deserving of praise; while Eloise Keeler, Marie Ilka, Marjorie Dalton and Dennis Gurney as the sinners who are hired to be saved furnish rich comedy moments.

"The Ark" is a play that would strike deep if there were more of life's bitter irony and less of saccharine romance in its formula. It falls just a little short of being great drama.

WILLIAM HODGE IN ALVIN

By CLARENCE E. GRUNDISH.

William Hodge is back behind the Pittsburgh footlights. He is building a house—or rather endeavoring to speed up the construction of one. He also assists in solving a murder and is repulsing, with witty and smart repartee, the advances of a feminine charmer, an interior decorator. This all occurs in his new play, "Straight Thru the Door," being presented on the Alvin stage.

The actor has with him a large cosmopolitan company. There is a carpenter, painter and a disgruntled stone mason; an architect, contractor and detective. Also the before-referred-to interior decorator, a wife, three children and a dog—the same old shaggy mongrel which has bounded its way through other Hodge productions.

The play itself, a mystery comedy, is delightful. There is a sparkle to its lines; action to its plot. And in a theatrical era of sex problems, underclothed music shows and sensationalism, it sounds a wholesome and refreshing note. As to be expected, the fertile creative ability of the Hodge mind and the naturalness of the Hodge performance mean much to the production's success.

In the drama Hodge, the actor, has the role of Eugene Thomas, a noted actor, struggling to have his unfinished house completed. As if there isn't confusion enough with lumber, tools and workmen strewn all over the place, the interior decorator tries her feminine charms upon him. Added to this there are wrangles with workmen—and then a murder. And right there, at the close of the first act, the play gets its name when the contractor, with a couple of bullets round his heart, falls "straight thru the door" into the unfinished library. A half-dozen persons, as far as the audience can tell, may have committed the crime. But the big detective—as gruff as stage tradition makes such personalities—is sure the actor himself is guilty.

Well, as you can guess, lots of progress toward solving the crime is made before the final curtain. The progress in the construction of the house is a bit slower—though draperies and lamps eventually appear in the library.

At atmosphere of youth is present through the play. This is contributed by the two daughters, played by Betty Byrne and Carol March; by the young son, essayed by Paul Jacchai, and by Robert Beyers, the elder sister's boy friend. Among the bright incidents of the production are the father's lectures on speeding. It seems that the daughters' feet go to sleep unless they are doing at least 50 per in the motor car.

The entire cast is capable. Francesca Hill proves a finished actress in the role of the interior decorator. Carol Perrin charms as the actor's wife and Martin Rollins knows his stage detective. Others in the cast include Nicholas Joy, Emil Hoch, John O'Meare, William DeRosa, Jack C. Connelly and Abbot Adams.

First-nighters last night accorded Mr. Hodge and his company enthusiastic applause and the hand-clapping was insistent enough at the end of the second act to induce him into making a little curtain speech. But the production deserved the acclaim. It's worth a trip to the Alvin to see Mr. Hodge build his house, chatter gaily and solve a murder mystery.

BEDINI'S SHOW GAYETY HIT

Jean Bedini and his new show, "Cock-A-Doodle-Doo," came to the Gayety yesterday, bringing pep, comedy, lively dancing, not too many songs and an above-the-average burlesque show. Mr. Bedini took part in a number of the scenes, some of which he had previously presented in vaudeville. His company proved by performance that capable players still are available for burlesque. The dancing of the Turner Boys and a girl billed as Bunnie B. were among the features that met with much approval. Doris Sennet's songs were another high spot, of which there were several, including specialties by Miles Bell, Vinnie Phillips, the Phillips Sisters, Charles Wesson and Roy Arthur, some of which were given in a French cabaret scene. The dancing chorus was drilled and appeared in a number of novel costumes, especially in scenes for "The Golden Gate" and "Jubilita."

"THE KING'S HENCHMAN" SEATS ARE IN DEMAND

"The King's Henchman" is to be given for the first time in Pittsburgh next Tuesday evening, December 13, at Syria Mosque. Yesterday, at the opening of the ticket sale, a line continued throughout the day. The opera, written by Deems Taylor and Edna St. Vincent Millay, is the first successful grand opera sung in English, and was given seven times last season by the Metropolitan, for which it was written.

Comedy and Romance Blend In "2 Girls Wanted," Which Charms Audience in Nixon

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

BIG business and love are mixed with good comedy in "2 Girls Wanted," which was much enjoyed by a large audience in the Nixon last night. By Gladys Unger, "2 Girls Wanted" served to reintroduce Nydia Westman, remembered especially as the little girl who played the romantic lead in "Lightnin'" and who later achieved success in "Pigs." Last night she further endeared herself by playing with much naturalness a little country girl, supposedly of no business ability, but who, nevertheless, was able to swing in the right direction a business deal at an increase of a half million over the original proposition. And that, one would be justified in saying, is quite some business accomplishment even on the stage, what with audiences so insistent that the factor of a logical balance be maintained.

The business and the romance and the comedy are so evenly and smoothly blended in "2 Girls Wanted" that laughs are well distributed throughout the three acts. Marianna Miller is a stenographer in the office of Philip Hancock and becomes his temporary secretary, in which position she is not satisfactory but in which she learns that her employer is to force a competitor to sell out to him at a price a half million less than the competing business is worth merely on a "nuisance value." She learns, too, that Dexter Wright, sales manager of the competing concern, who has just told her his love for her, is engaged to the niece of his employer.

Losing faith in men in general and Dexter Wright in particular she quits her job and she and her sister take places as servants at a country place only to find themselves where the business conference is to be held to close the deal and she injects herself into the battle of wits in which Wright is the lad who blocks the sale at the price Hancock would pay. The conference is postponed until the next morning. Hancock's nephew proposing to get Wright out of the way in the interim. This is done by drugging his drink at a party but Marianna has told the chauffeur to look after him and he is able to be on hand unexpectedly, with evidence of the plot against him.

This is the deciding element. The deal is closed his way and his new employer makes him manager of the Chicago branch. Marianna learns that she really is the girl he adores and she says, in answer to his question, that she would just love to live in Chicago.

Miss Westman's Marianna was a charmingly innocent lass. She has a naive quality that manifests in a semi-hesitance of action and speech and evenness of tone that makes her quite adorable. Donald Foster was convincing as the confident sales manager and insistent love-maker. Frank Monroe was the hard-shelled John Hancock and gave the part a steely joviality that made him a favorite. Mary Philips was the acme of primness and efficiency as his secretary and Grace Menken gave a typical characterization of a social butterfly, fiance of Wright, until he met Marianna and until she had become secretly engaged to a title in Europe. Charlotte Denniston, May Duryea, Herbert Saunders, Charles Laite, John LeFevre and John Humphrey all played minor parts acceptably.

How to Sweeten Sour Stomach

Sour stomach means that acid is fermenting the food, forming gas and causing pain. You must get rid of this acid for it not only causes severe discomfort, but it also attacks the stomach lining and may lead to ulcers.

For acid indigestion—and this covers 19 out of 20 cases—there's nothing better than pure, harmless Bi-nesia. A few tablets or a teaspoonful of the powder will instantly neutralize the acid, thus relieving the pain at once. And Bi-nesia is the one remedy which heals the delicate stomach lining, thus protecting fully against ulcers. For quick, safe relief from acid indigestion, get a large 50 cent package of Bi-nesia tablets or powder of any druggist today.

BANJOIST WINS IN ALDINE

Bert Gordon and his sombrero kept himself well to the foreground of the show in the Aldine yesterday afternoon. Bert, an amusing comedian, took his East Side dialect into cowboy atmosphere and, assisted by four or so players, did a sort of "Dan McGrew" act. Bert also did a follow-up when Vera Kingston offered her act. Vera sang. Quite well, too, considering Bert's intrusions. The biggest hand went to Joe Roberts, banjo player. This young man, whose playing as well as his mop of hair marked him an artist, rendered several musical compositions not usually associated with a banjo. Lenora's Jewels entertained with their dancing, and the Four Karreys twisted their bodies into various positions to the amusement of the audience. "The College Hero," a collegiate film, topped the screen portion of the bill. Bobby Agnew is the boy who wins the game and the girl, Pauline Garon. That cross-eyed comedian, Ben Turpin, is in the cast. Short film features completed the show.

"LES MISERABLES" HELD IN CAMEO SECOND WEEK

The French-made picturization of Victor Hugo's "Les Miserables" is being presented for a second week in the Cameo. A new "Collegian" film, news pictures and special music also are on the bill.

"The Show-Off" Tops Bill in Sheridan

A condensed version of "The Show-Off" was presented as the headline feature of the vaudeville in the Sheridan Square yesterday. The high spots of the comedy, squeezed into one act, gave much pleasure to the audience. "The Girl From Chicago" was the principal screen presentation. It is a melodrama in which the leading roles were played by Conrad Nagel and Myrna Loy. Six men gave banjo selections in a skit, "Banjoland," in which Lorette Dennison interspersed songs and dances. Jones and Jones, blackface comedians, delineated the darkey character in songs and chatter. Monte & O'Brien presented a novelty and the Arena Brothers, in an acrobatic specialty, completed the stage acts. Other offerings were an organlogue by John Edward Mitchell, screen comedy, filmed news and an Aesop Fable.

VITAPHONE AND FILM OLYMPIC ATTRACTIONS

Allan Prior, Australian tenor and former "Student Prince" star, is seen and heard on the Vitaphone in the Olympic this week. The Vitaphone program also offers the Arnaut Brothers, Swedish whistlers, and Reb Spikes and his Follies Entertainers. The photoplay is a re-issue—that of James Cruze's "The Covered Wagon," a drama of the pioneers. The cast includes Lois Wilson, J. Warren Kerrigan, Ernest Torrance and Tully Marshall. News pictures are shown.

"My Best Girl," Mary Pickford's comedy drama, concerning a five-and-ten cent store girl, is being shown this week in the Cameraphone. As the shopgirl, Mary falls in love with one Joe Grant, another employe. Joe, though Mary doesn't know it, is the son of the store owner. Joe's parents aren't very enthusiastic about Mary as a daughter-in-law. But the clouds, as most movie clouds do, bear a silver lining. Short features are on the bill.

No other cars have travelled so fast so far! ...

And Studebaker used Amoco-Gas

Upper Picture: The AMOCO-GAS pit which fueled the Studebakers all through the test.

Lower Picture: The Studebaker Commander Sedan about to cross the automatic timing device.

You've read about this wonderful, record-breaking test made by the Studebaker Corporation of America on the Atlantic City Speedway under the supervision of the American Automobile Association.

You've heard how the three Studebaker Commanders reeled off 25,000 miles each—the roadsters finishing in 22,968 minutes at an average speed of 65.31 miles per hour—the sedan covering the same distance at an average speed of almost 62 miles per hour.

Throughout these runs, in which the Studebaker cars set world records for distance covered and average speed, AMOCO-GAS was used exclusively.

The Studebaker Corporation had used AMOCO-GAS in establishing previous records with the Commander, with the Dictator and with the Erskine Six. So it was only natural that AMOCO-GAS was chosen in the successful attempt to make a record that no machine of any kind had even approached in all the history of the world.

Twenty-five thousand miles! More than most cars are driven in a couple of years. Covered at far better than mile a minute speed. And totalling the mileage covered by all three cars—

AMOCO-GAS gave 75,000 miles of faultless high-speed performance!

Wall St. Overworks Rumor Factory; Usually Bad Sign

By B. C. FORBES

RUMOR, rumor, rumor; denial, denial, denial.

That has become the daily order in the stock market. Usually this is interpreted as a sign that a violent speculative movement is nearing its end.

The present prolonged bull movement, however, has shattered so many precedents that it may shatter this one also.

RUMOR-MONGERING became notoriously prevalent in the closing days of the week. For example:

Canadian Pacific Railway shares were run up some 20 points on published reports that this gigantic corporation was ready to "segregate" its vast steamship, hotel and other properties from its strictly railway operations. President E. W. Beatty promptly issued a denial.

Several motor equipment companies' shares were suddenly marked up under the stimulus of reports that Ford had placed huge orders. Denials quickly came.

An ambitious merger of independent steel companies was made to do duty by bullish speculators. More denials.

Persistent reports that certain tremendously wealthy interests were eagerly buying very heavily into two or three very prominent corporations also were declared to be unfounded.

THE week's actual developments were not such as to fan speculative exuberance—which perhaps explains the resort to lies.

The week brought no new incentive from the realm of agriculture. The decrease in traffic announced by the railroads was the heaviest for any week of the current year, compared with last year. Stocks of stored oil were further swollen. The automobile industry is experiencing a pronounced lull; the explanation offered is that everybody is awaiting Ford developments now that his long-awaited new car has made its appearance in very limited numbers.

LITTLE encouraging news has come from the textile industries. Building operations naturally are curtailed as winter weather arrives. The iron and steel industry was not able to furnish any bullish ammunition. Outside of Detroit employment reports are only fair. Some doubts were expressed here and there that Christmas trade would fulfill the rosiest expectations. The week brought more commodity price reductions than advances. Commercial failures during the last month were more numerous than any November since 1922, but total liabilities were less.

THEN events in the money market were not favorable to feverish speculation for the rise. Call money went to 4½ per cent. Brokers' loans again reached new heights. The ratio of reserve gold exports, and also "ear-marking" of gold here by foreign countries, occurred, with the probability of shipments of the metal to London increased by a fresh rise in sterling to a new peak since the war.

Certain bankers declare—privately rather than publicly—that our floating of foreign loans here this year to a total of $1,500,000,000 has meant the piling up of credits here which can be drawn upon at any time.

CONGRESS is in session. But it is characteristic of Wall street's present state of mind that interest was centered on the likelihood of a cheerful message from President Coolidge rather than on the threatened activities of radicals after the session gets under way. That attacks will be made upon important industries is definitely foretold. And the Federal Trade Commission has announced that it will be ready to furnish the results of numerous probes. Meanwhile, the Interstate Commerce Commission continues to withhold assent to any of the major railway consolidations proposed.

WALL STREET'S mood of the moment was vividly illustrated on Friday, when the receipt of the unprecedently unfavorable traffic figures was immediately followed by very vigorous marking up of railway shares.

THE impression the public must have received is that the stock market still is booming upwards. The truth, however, is that notwithstanding all the demonstrations in various speculative issues, and notwithstanding another 2,000,000-share day, average quotations on the New York Stock Exchange ended the week without any gain whatsoever. The ballyhooing suggests that there has been quite as much unloading by powerful operators as there has been accumulating of stocks. It is hardly conceivable that wealthy, forward-looking investors should have awaited until now to climb for extensive lines of stocks.

ALL this is not to be interpreted as meaning that general business, on the whole, is not reasonably good. But the stock market's behavior does strike the writer as—well, not conducive to confidence in its ability.

NARROW CHANGES NOTED IN LOCAL FUEL STOCKS

May Drug Registers New Top Price

Arkansas Natural Gas and Lone Star Gas, the two recent leaders of the local trading list, continued to dominate the dealings on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange today. Prices in the first half of the session showed no material change from the previous session's closings and the volume of stock handled was about the same as yesterday.

An incident of the forenoon session was a sale of one share of Peoples Savings and Trust Company at $600. This was an advance of $5 a share over the last previous sale, recorded about a month ago. This stock has reflected its scarcity over the past several weeks when bids for the issue have mounted steadily. While the sale of the one share today was at 600, the ask price for the shares in larger lots was 610.

May Drug in the specialty department showed further strength, carrying through to a new high on the upward movement which started last week. Recent official statement regarding the company's favorable earnings outlook was responsible for the upturn.

Around midday the market quieted down considerably, but the slackening had little or no effect on prices in the general list.

FINANCIAL NEWS AND VIEWS

Exchange Loans Higher.

New York Stock Exchange members loans totaled $4,091,836 as of November 30, an increase of $145,088,929 over October 31, and a new high record.

Of the total on November 30, demand loans totaled $3,134,067,838 and time loans amounted to $957,909,998, compared with $3,029,278,874 and $922,809,509 on October 31, respectively.

These are net loans to members of New York Stock Exchange on collateral contracted for and carried in New York. The low for 1927 was $3,134,786,338, made on January 1. The high for 1926 was $3,555,590,321, made February 27, and the low for 1926 was $2,767,460,514, made May 14.

Although the increase of $145,088,000 was not as large as expected, as a result of November's wild trading, it puts the loans at a new high record and gives speculators a little more to worry about. A loan total of $4,000,000,000, when considered in connection with the steady gain in number of securities listed and traded in, is not large, but in connection with possible congressional discussion and in view of the nearly political campaign, the huge amount gives reason for thought.

Oil Output Gains Sharply.

Daily average production of crude oil in the U. S. for the week ended December 3 was 2,507,151 barrels, an increase of 18,033 barrels over the previous week, according to the Oil and Gas Journal.

Seminole at 406,000.

The Seminole area for 24 hours ended at 7 a. m. Monday produced 406,250 barrels crude oil from 1,028 wells as against 411,550 barrels on Sunday, and a peak of 527,400 barrels on July 30.

McCrory Stores Sales Gain.

McCrory Stores Corporation reports November sales were $3,239,554, against $2,936,588 in November, 1926. Eleven months sales totaled $32,482,031 compared with $27,558,318 a year ago.

Grant Sales Expand.

The W. T. Grant Company, chain stores, reports sales for November, 1927, of $4,360,667, compared with $3,725,516 for November, 1926. For 11 months ended November 30, 1927, sales were $35,117,409, compared with $29,479,627, in the corresponding period of 1926.

Sees Normal Business Expansion.

Although admitting that it is possible for business to occur next year, the Standard Statistics Company says that it finds "no substantial reasons, as 1927 draws to a close, for forecasting a backward movement of true business of any importance at any time during 1928. A moderate amount of expansion in business activity during the first quarter of 1928 is a strong probability, rather than a mere possibility," the comment continues.

Equipment Inquiries.

Inquiries in the railroad equipment market have been increased to 11,000 cars, with one from Texas and Pacific for prices on one 50-ton gondolas, 200 5-ton automobile and 200 50-ton flat cars. First sign of revival in locomotive demand made itself apparent last week when Southern Railway sent out inquiries for 28 large engines. About the same time Boston and Maine revived its inquiry for 25 to 30 engines. This inquiry appeared some months ago but was withdrawn.

Eastern Crude Oil Prices.

Advance of 5 to 10 cents a barrel in prices of leading grades of Pennsylvania crude on Saturday is attributed to improved demand resulting in a better balanced average position of South Penn Oil Company, principal purchaser of those grades. While the extent of this improvement has been limited, as indicated by the amount of the advance, according to this authority, there may be further upward adjustment in prices of other eastern crude grades to bring them in line with the advance in higher grades. In the past 10 days to two weeks refiners have been buying more crude and as a result the company's stocks, which were tending to accumulate, are again approaching normal. Usually refiners begin to buy larger quantities of Pennsylvania crude around November 15, in order to make up stocks in anticipation of spring delivery. This year such buying was delayed, with refiners apparently expectant of a further cut in nonessential crude.

Houston Oil Gas Sales.

November sales of natural gas by Houston Pipe Line Company totaled 2,300,000,000 cubic feet, compared with 2,000,424,000 last in October. The slight decrease was due to the unseasonably warm weather in Texas during November.

Implement Makers Plan Merger.

Chicago reports any merger negotiations involving Emerson Brantingham Company, American Seeding Company and other agricultural implement making concerns are under way, with the possibility of consummation before long. Interests close to the companies involved believe that various economies could be effected through a consolidation. Advance Rumely Company, however, is not in any way concerned in the negotiations.

Woolworth Sales Higher.

F. W. Woolworth Company reports November sales at $23,720,000 as against $22,-816,550 in November, 1926. For 11 months total sales were $229,820,594 as against $212,-191,192 in the corresponding period last year.

Colorado Fuel and Iron Gets Rail Order.

Colorado Fuel and Iron Company has received an order for 17,000 tons of 130 pound rails from the Southern Pacific Company.

S. S. Kresge Sales.

November sales of S. S. Kresge Company rose to $12,030,892 from $10,936,597 in November, last year, and for 11 months this year to $110,722,047 from $98,767,251 in the corresponding 1926 period.

Murray Oil Shows Gain.

Murray Oil Corporation earned $4.87 a share in the first nine months of 1927, against $1.81 a share in the same period last year.

New High on International Pete.

International Petroleum on the New York Curb reached a new high record this morning at 59, but, not selling at that figure, and dropped back a point or so. There was no news to account for the strength. The company has enormous production revenue in Colombia, S. A., and has good facilities for transportation of its oil to the Caribbean shipping ports on the Caribbean Sea from whence it is transported to the Atlantic Seaboard refineries in the United States. International Petroleum is controlled by Imperial Oil of Canada, which in turn is controlled by Standard Oil of New Jersey. A possible reason for the advance would be an agreement as to the validity of the company's Colombian holdings. New coal and mineral laws similar to those in Mexico have been proposed for Colombia and there has been some nervousness as to just what attitude the Colombian government would adopt.

Finex Winter Front.

The Texas Winter Front Company reports net profits for six months ended October 31, last, after taxes and charges of $190,125, compared with $222,400 in the corresponding period a year ago.

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Dec. 6.—(AP.)—Considerable selling came into the bond market today as many traders took their profits after the recent sustained advance. The situation in the money market was little changed, however, and recessions in the main were limited to small fractions.

The dissolution of the syndicate which offered the $47,000,000 Republic of Poland 7s at 92 several weeks ago, resulted in a break of about 4 points to 89. The price rallied about a point in subsequent dealings. Polish 8s also inclined to heaviness, selling just above 98. Most of the foreign issues were quiet at easy prices.

Trading was scattered over a rather long list in the domestic department, but transactions in most cases were limited in volume. Realizing clipped a point from the quotations for St. Paul refunding 4½s and there was a moderate recession in Dodge Brothers 6s. Continental Bag and Paper 6½s rallied fractionally from their recent softening tendency.

United States government bonds were dull and steady.

Offering is expected later in the week of the $18,000,000 Twin City Rapid Transit Company refunding 5½s.

NEW YORK, Dec. 6.—(AP.)—Transactions in the most active bonds on the New York Stock Exchange today were as follows, 000 omitted in sales column (United States bonds in dollars and thirty-seconds of dollars):

WASHINGTON,—Although I am not convinced that the request is sincere, I have been asked in a number of letters, telegrams and phone calls to state how I stand on Child Labor.

Well, friends, it is like this—

I don't think Child Labor is a very good thing.

I have had my step-children working for the last three years in a coal mine.

And I have about concluded that Child Labor is a bad thing. Children won't get in and dig like grown people. And I have had a hard time trying to get them to bring all their pay to daddy.

On pay day I go to the mine and yell down the shaft for them to hurry and bring me their checks. And, do you know, I have had to punish them time after time. They pretend they don't hear me.

ELECTRIFYING THE FLAPPERS.

CITIES are getting together in an effort to abolish the smoke nuisance. Coal-burning automobiles and peanut roasters will be suppressed. The first gun is fired in this war by the Health Department of New York. So far as the smoke is concerned, there has been some dirty work going on.

SMOKE news has been coming in thick and fast and very smudgy since the country-wide campaign opened. Some of it is true, no doubt.

Visiting police captain in blue uniform, who had spent the day in Cleveland, was standing beside a sleeping car waiting for his train to pull out when a lady came along and, handing him two grips, said:

"Please, show me to my section, porter."

So far as the trains themselves are concerned, any white man in uniform is liable to be called "George," and asked to go and get a deck of cards.

New York University has established a fireproof smoking room for young lady students. A smoke consumer in the roof saves the neighborhood from groping about in semi-darkness during the school year. Let the improvements go on.

FLAPPERS suffering from soot on the chest have complained that their fine gowns are ruined. They start for the opera in white and get there in black. Their escorts have trouble getting into the diamond horseshoe because the ushers take them for minstrel end-men.

In any city the weather observer can predict "cloudy" every week-day in the year and never guess wrong.

NEW rules suggested in the anti-smoke crusade for cities will be drastic and very much to the point.

Taxicab and limousine windows must remain closed when occupied by modern young ladies and when passing through downtown streets. Whenever possible, oil-burning flappers shall be allowed to leave the windows open.

Another solution of this form of the smoke nuisance is to have the young women electrocuted.

A FLUSHING lady telephoned the police excitedly one night last week to the effect that a colored man was trying to break into the house. The man finally climbed up to the roof of the porch and then slid off and landed in a rain barrel. When he emerged, she recognized her husband, the water having changed his complexion from a patent leather to a light sepia. The lady, having stood in the front door for five minutes, was not recognized by the husband, but he thought she was probably a new cook and no harm was done.

Other frightful tales come from various parts of the country. Thousands of business men have been accused of being Fascists on account of the hue of their shirts.

BLACK AND WHITE taxicabs the country over have been obliged to omit the "White" portion of their title and Mayor Walker's white spats last him only from his house half-way to the subway.

The Anti-Tobacco League has taken formal cognizance of the crusade against smoke and is doing its bit, whatever that is. The league claims that where there is so much smoke there must be some cigarets.

In a few months the various cities hope that a man may leave his home for the corner drug-store without unwinding a ball of cord so as to find his way back.

National Referendum Only Gauge of "Dry" vs. "Wet"

Are the two great national parties going to make Prohibition an issue in the coming campaign, as Senator Borah wishes?

Is the Republican party going to come out flat for unconditional, ruthless enforcement of the Prohibition amendment and the Volstead Act, and is the Democratic party going to come out against such enforcement, so that the total Republican and Democratic votes next November will represent the nation's desires for and against the present form of Prohibition?

The question answers itself. Of course, there is going to be no such a chance to vote on Prohibition. Republicans are not going to take away all hope from wets in the cities. Democrats are not going to destroy support from the dry South. Political parties are not run that way.

Nevertheless, there is a way to have a showdown on this question. Each party can put in its platform a demand for a national referendum on Prohibition, a special vote dealing with no other subject. It would bring out the heaviest vote ever recorded. If the referendum election were held under the auspices of the United States Government the results would be indisputable.

Republican wets, headed by Senator Wadsworth and President Butler of Columbia, met at the Union League Club in New York City and applauded plans for raising a $3,000,000 campaign fund to be expended in the next four or five years in the fight against Prohibition.

Two weeks ago the heads of the Anti-Saloon League, meeting at the Bellevue-Stratford at Philadelphia, proclaimed a budget of $1,000,000 a year for the next five years.

The way to settle this question is not by the millions of dollars of the rival propaganda organizations, but by the vote of the people.

Meanwhile Senator Borah invades New Haven and denounces as "cowardly and slimy" the doctrine of President Emeritus Hadley of Yale that free men have a right to nullify—by disobedience—a law they think unjust, tyrannical and in violation of their rights and liberties.

Two years of protest and attack have not dulled the sharp edge of President Hadley's observations made in Harper's for November, 1925:

"Nullification is not revolution. It is a safety valve which helps a self-governing community avoid the alternative between tyranny and revolution. It reduces the tension; it gives a warning to those in authority, which they disregard at their own peril.

"The members of any great civilized community actually use their judgment a great deal in deciding how far they obey laws which they regard as bad or even inconvenient for the community. If the police look the other way when such a law is broken, its bad effects are avoided without much harm to anyone.

"The process of blocking the law by disobedience is known as nullification. The Fugitive Slave law was thus nullified by the people of the North. The reconstruction acts were thus nullified by the people of the South."

Whether it is right or not, the fact is that an extremely large percentage of the people of the country, North, East, South and West, are actually nullifying the Eighteenth Amendment.

Nullification will go on until we have CERTAINTY, which will bring either enforcement or repeal. The way to certainty is a national referendum vote on this issue alone. Let the two parties in their platforms commit themselves to this referendum. They ought to be glad of the opportunity thus to segregate and settle an issue which confuses—and is confused by—national and local politics the country over.

Concentration

Some people's thoughts won't steer; they keep running off the road.

Scatter-brains never get very far. Ability to put the mind on something and keep it there is a highly necessary accomplishment.

The traditional absent-mindedness of professors and other thinking men shows concentration, without which nothing can be figured out. Among the earliest of the species was Archimedes, one of the prize concentrators of the world.

Plutarch tells an entertaining anecdote about the Greek scholar, who lived in the original Syracuse, in Sicily, some two hundred years before our era, and dealt in such matters as the quadrature of the parabola and other mathematical profundities. Said Plutarch:

"The charm of his familiar and domestic siren (meaning his studies) made him forget his food and neglect his person, to that degree that when he was occasionally carried by absolute violence to bathe or have his body anointed, he used to trace geometrical figures in the ashes of the fire and diagrams in the oil on his body, being in a state of entire preoccupation and, in the truest sense, divine possession with his love and delight in science."

Everybody remembers that other tale about Archimedes, when he ran home from the bath without his clothes, exclaiming "Eureka!"—"I have found it"—having stumbled across the principle on which he afterward built the whole science of hydrostatics.

That's concentration with a vengeance, of a sort reserved for geniuses like Archimedes. But some variety need to be cultivated by everyone, for his convenience and profit. The mind can be disciplined to stay put, and not go flying off at each trifling distraction. Few habits are more valuable.

Bad Time for Cavemen

After several hundred years a law has just been passed in England penalizing the offense of wife-beating, and several husbands have heard about it for the first time when marched off to jail. Naturally they are indignant. It has long been the recognized right of all Europeans to flog their wives—just to show their authority.

In the United States, although there is a law against it, no special statute is needed. It is too much a relic of the Dark Ages for a modern country to think of. At any rate, the average American wife is not the sort who could be beaten—not even at bridge whist—and few if any husbands are foolish enough to try it.

The Hearst Papers Advocate:

ALL CAKE AND NO BREAD MAKE JACK A SICK BOY

Garrett P Serviss Says:

Arcturus and the Bear

"I have been thinking that it would be of interest to readers if you would explain the words in Job 38:32, 'Can'st thou guide Arcturus with his sons?' How could the ancients know that the planets are moving through space, and why select Arcturus?—F. E. I."

BY "PLANETS" you mean "stars." The ancients knew from the earliest times that the planets are in motion, but the stars they regarded as "fixed," because their motions, on account of their immense distance, only became known through the application of modern instruments of exact observation and measurement.

The imposing words that you quote from the book of Job do not, however, refer to the star Arcturus, but probably to the constellation of the Great Bear. The error originated from a mistranslation by St. Jerome when preparing the Latin vulgate edition of the Bible. He translated the Hebrew word "Ayish" by "Arcturus," whereas it really referred to the stars constituting the figure of the "Bear," which marches diurnally around the north pole of the heavens.

In a German translation from the Hebrew the word was rendered "the Bear and her young," and in the English "Breeches Bible," the sentence about Arcturus has an explanatory marginal note reading "The North Star with those that are about him." You will find much on this subject in Richard Hinckley Allen's classic book on "Star Names and Their Meanings."

The star Arcturus received its name at very early time in history. Not only its brightness but its position in the sky, being the most conspicuous object in a striking group of stars (the constellation Bootes, the "Bear Driver") which follows at the heels of the Great Bear, served to call universal attention to it. Few, if any, stars have been more closely associated with popular traditions about the weather and celestial influences over the fertility of the earth, or over the fortunes and fates of seagoers. Arcturus was considered a "stormy sign" when rising or setting with the sun, "vehement when rising, when setting more vehement."

In autumn evenings, when the hunters are homeward bound, the great star sinks glowing through the trees to his setting in the northwest and then, as Madison Cawein sings in his poem, "Under Arcturus":

"When red dusk makes the western sky
A fire-lit window through the firs,
He stoops to see the red fox die
Among the chestnut's broken burrs."

The reason why the writer of the Book of Job should have selected the Great Bear to symbolize the power of the Almighty, exhibited, in a way inimitable by man, is plain enough to one who observes the motion of that constellation around the apparently motionless Pole Star. The "circumpolar" stars impress their motion upon the watcher because their paths are so distinctly parts of circles, and the common center of their motion is so evident to the eye. The thought of a mighty controlling power is immediately presented to the mind. The sense of "guiding" is inherent in the sight. Naturally the triumphant question would spring to the lips of a devout man pointing to that conspicuous figure framed in the circling stars: "Canst THOU guide Arcturus (i. e. the Great Bear) with his sons?"

Upon the whole, perhaps there are no star groups about which a greater degree of human interest has been collected by legend and mythology than about Bootes and the Bears. One of the stories gleaned by Allen represents "the Bear with her young feeding around the pole," and another describes her as "the nightly wanderer, a mother of the stars, seeking her lost children—those that no longer are visible."

Astronomical science can not drive away these things, and does not even try to do so. He is a dry-as-dust astronomer—if any exists—who ignores the legends of the stars and constellations. There the human mind itself is reflected in the heavens.

Write It Down

ARE you one of those persons who carry their financial worries on their chests instead of inside the covers of personal account books?

You would rather spend your relaxation hours trying to jot down and think up all the debts coming due in the next six months than to put them down systematically and have them to refer to.

"Let the other fellow keep the books," is your motto.

Yet because you have not an itemized account of your coming obligations your waking moments in the dead of night are often disturbed by persistent feats of mental arithmetic which dodge in and out of your mind.

You won't budget your income because you don't want to feel a limit to what you might want to do along a certain line.

You don't really want to see your finances in black and white.

You know in your heart that if you had them before your eyes you would recognize very easily where you are over-drawing just now.

There is no reason to extend sympathy to the person who is wilfully blind.

Dickens

BECAUSE the night is thick with snow
No stars are shining down;
The cold winds creep, the fierce winds blow
About the huddled town.
And ever, as they come and go,
Then snow weaves Earth a gown.
But all the gloom, the icy blast
Give me no sense of blight;
The shades are drawn, the door made fast
And Dickens reigns tonight
Beside my hearth and from the past
His visions wake delight.
Quaint, homely folks are guests of mine
And bring for this brief space
A flavor rare as vintage wine
Into the firelit place;
Micawber's speech rings loud and fine
And here smiles Pickwick's face.
Now David, Dora, Little Nell
With others throng the room,
Uriah Heep, Manette as well
Crowd Esther's grace and bloom;
Though snow drifts deep, winds shriek and yell,
No storm is here, no gloom!

AND SUPPER later.
AND THE music was good.
AND WHEN supper came.
I SAT me down.
* * *
WITH A little group.
OF PLEASANT persons.
AND ONE of the dishes.
THAT WERE served to us.
HAD AN oyster base.
AND ANOTHER one.
THERE WAS a lobster in it.
* * *
AND ONE of the men.
WHO SAT with us.
REMEMBERED the story.
HE'D READ in the paper.
OF THE suffering oysters.
AND SUFFERING lobsters.
AND HE spoke of it.
AND FURTHER than that.
HE WENT into detail.
IN DESCRIBING to us.
JUST WHY it was.
THAT THE oyster suffered.
AS MUCH as the lobster.
AND ANYWAY.
RIGHT THERE in my lap.
ON A china plate.
LAY GOOED UP portions.
OF THESE harmless things.
THAT HAD been tortured.
TO FEED us.
AND I tried my best.
TO STEEL myself.
INTO EATING it.
BUT IT couldn't be done.
AND I arose.
AND ON the veranda.
I FOUND a place.
WHERE I hid the plate.
ALL BY itself.
I THANK you.

Isn't It So?

The older a man gets, the smaller the world seems.

Life is a grind, but it doesn't always make things smooth.

Virtue is its own reward. Many a person is too good to tell a lie, even to save a friend.

New York Day by Day
by O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Dec. 6.—Those imperious chiffon ladies with such defiant insouciance who form a part of New York's half-world glamour are almost invariably of small town origin. Their plight is usually the result of loneliness that follows failure and a determination not to go back home.

So they take the easiest way. And drift through the tinted opulence of elegant apartments, unlimited charge accounts, fine motors, jewels and to the inevitable disillusionment of the cast-off mistress. They seem conscious of the finale, and move about with a straight-lipped indifference.

They have one tenet in their moral code they never violate. In their world it reads: "No cheating." Life often becomes an incessant struggle to keep news of derelictions from home folks. They receive their mail in private postoffice boxes.

And frequently when relatives visit they rent cheap apartments in which to entertain them and take humble jobs to aid the deception until relatives depart. New York is not big enough to smother gossip, and so their only friends are of their own sisterhood.

It is seldom they are seen in the hectic haunts of frivolity. Their lives to all outward appearance are as decorously sedate as that of the most conventional matron. If they dine out, it is with a group in one of the secluded restaurants.

Much of their time is spent in Europe, where continental custom gives them a certain standing. At least they are not snubbed. And gossip becomes a murmur. Suspicion increases daily in their cloistered world, living as they do in the fear of abandonment or discovery.

In New York it has been estimated there are some 20,000 women, all for the most part under the age of 30, who are living in luxurious apartments under a pseudo marriage name. And material baubles seem to fail miserably to compensate for the endless tedium of being what New York calls a "keptive."

A downtown executive became imbued with the fear he would jump from the twenty-second story, where his offices were. The phobia grew to such alarming proportions he was in a perpetual dew of perspiration. He consulted a psycho-analyst, who suggested he go with him to the top of the office building the following evening and he would talk him out of his foolish fancy. Timidly he went. After the elevator descended, four rough looking men pounced upon them. They struggled with the psycho-analyst and the patient, dragging them toward the roof edge. The patient fought with the fury of a tiger. Suddenly he was released—and his tormentors laughed. He realized he was cured.

Almost every man worth while has some secret hobby of which he is a trifle ashamed. It may be an ambition to execute a neat clog, play a saxophone or such. A reporter by accident opened the door of the private office of a man known for his heavy philanthropy. The great and grave man was expertly keeping five tennis balls in the air. For years his spare time has been spent in mastering the art of juggling.

It is the gesture of a group of literary minnows in New York to attack for no reason at all the whales. They attempt to give a halo to their own mediocrity by poking fun at their betters. Among their thrusts lately were some aimed at Rex Beach, Rupert Hughes and Cosmo Hamilton. It must be disconcerting to them to observe that Messrs. Beach, Hughes and Hamilton are stonily indifferent to their jeers. Men and women who have achieved in literature, I have noticed, do not attack the brothers and sisters in the profession. On the contrary, their attitude toward them is one of encouragement and help. Whatever their private opinions may be, their spoken attitude is one of praise and sympathy.

The best drama in my opinion, up to date, is "Nightstick" with a startling performance by Raymond Hackett and the poorest to my notion is "Interference."

The Examination
By DR. FRANK CRANE

In one of our important cities the members of the detective force took exception to the kind of examination which they received at the hands of the Civil Service officers.

They claim that the questions they were asked had nothing to do with their ability as detectives and were catch questions.

A perusal of these questions as given in the press bears out the statement that they were merely trivial and unimportant.

We recall the case of old John Rhinebarger, who wanted a job as a mail clerk in the railway postoffice. He was examined by the Civil Service Commission. One of the questions asked him was, "How far is it from the earth to the sun?"

He replied, "I don't think it is far enough to interfere with my duties as a railway mail clerk."

Another question that was asked him was: "How many Hessians were imported into the United States during the Revolutionary War?"

His answer was, "I don't remember exactly, but a lot more of them came over than went back."

This kind of question deserves about this kind of answer.

The examination is a traditional and rock-rooted fake. It is one of the worst ways of finding out whether a man is qualified for a position. The best teacher often is not the one with the most information and assorted knowledge, but the one who has a gift for teaching and can make pupils want to study.

The best preacher is not the one who knows the most facts, but the one who can nourish spiritual desires in his congregation.

The most competent woman is not the one who can take a prize in a beauty contest, but the one who has "It" and makes a man love her and keep his love.

A teacher who has been six months in a room with a pupil and then needs an examination at the end to find out how much a pupil knows or his other qualifications, is not much of a teacher.

There is one way to find out if a person is fit for his job. Let him try it and see how he succeeds. The man we want is the man that can do the business.

The best cook is not the one who can pass an examination on calories and such things, but is one who can cook a good meal and often cannot tell how she does it.

Examinations anyhow indicate mere ability to write.

I could write a better essay on horseshoeing than most any blacksmith, but if I tried to shoe a horse I should probably be kicked into the middle of next week.

Right Angles

How You Talk

YOU will grant, won't you, that Kilkenny is a good birth place for a satirist.

Jonathan Swift, the doughty dean, chose that bit of Irish sod as his Bethlehem. The eternal fitness of things could only suggest Donnybrook as more excellent than Kilkenny for this nativity.

Satire and irony are not exactly the vocabulary of love-making, and the good dean had his quiver full of barbed enemies.

This Irish brainstormer and brimstoner was as wise as an anaconda, though hardly as harmless as a fantail, and for this reason I do hereby condense and commend a brevity of his on conversation.

Don't strain yourself and cudgel your brain to say something witty every time you speak. The bon mot is not the only legal tender of conversational give-and-take. He cuts a sorry figure, in his egotism gone to seed, who, sweats cold when fumbling for a clever witticism which refuses to materialize.

Don't try to be the Napoleon of the conversational circle. If you would deliver a monologue get into vaudeville or go hire a hall. The company will not die instanter if your talents are not paraded ad nauseam.

Beware of the raillery which has degenerated into repartee and smarty talk. To get the laugh on a member of the company and then drive him into the corner of humiliated silence, is more disgraceful than skillful. Make every sentence universally welcome.

Don't tell stories which were Methuselahs when Moses was in the bulrushes. Few can tell a story acceptably. Its fitness is ever conditioned upon the psychological atmosphere of the moment. To forget the point of a yarn and hem and haw is the limit of boorishness.

Public speakers are prone to inflict every conversation with a digest of their speeches which are platform-built instead of parlor-built and are as set and fixed as Gibraltar.

And to quote the great dean verbatim:

"Thus we see how human nature is most debased by the abuse of that faculty which is held the great distinction between men and brutes; and how little advantage we make of that, which might be the greatest, the most lasting and the most innocent, as well as useful, pleasure of life."

LISTEN, WORLD! ELSIE ROBINSON Says: She Told Her Daughter

A MOTHER did a heroic thing the other day. She didn't think it was heroic. She didn't make any fuss about it. She did it as part of her ordinary service in life. But I wonder if any deed on a battlefield ever surpassed it in courage?

The mother is 36. The daughter is 15, a big, healthy, boy-struck girl. The boy-struck angle began to make trouble. The girl was becoming furtive, dangerously emotional—the mother's advice and protests did no good. The daughter loved her but she honestly felt that mother didn't understand. Mother was cool, quiet, sensible, fond of her home, careful about her reputation. That was a fine sort of a mother to have but you couldn't expect that sort of a mother to understand these secret, feverish tuggings and tremblings, this wonderful new dizziness and delight, this longing to hide and dream and run away.

That was how the girl felt and the mother saw it going on in her mind. She remembered what had gone on in her own mind when she was 15. People had preached at her too. But they had never sacrificed their own dignity or comfort to help her—and she knew what their neglect had cost her. She didn't want her little girl to pay that price.

So one day she sat down and had a talk with her daughter. She told her how she had felt when she was 15—how she had been boy crazy too. She didn't talk about it sentimentally or try to save her dignity. She told exactly how she had felt and acted—how excited she had been over all sorts of common, stupid, warty boys—what a show she had made of herself—how people had laughed at her. But she hadn't cared. The whole world had seemed to swell and tremble and grow hot and sweet and shiny whenever a new boy came around. Often the new boy laughed at her too—but even that hadn't stopped her.

As the mother told all this, the daughter looked at her queerly. She saw that look. She knew that she was making herself cheap and ridiculous in the eyes of her daughter. She also knew that she was making the future very difficult for herself. She was throwing away a power and glamour that she had always had and she would never again be able to "put anything over" just because she was a mother. She would have to qualify, hereafter, as any stranger would have to qualify, through her own strength and friendliness. She knew all that, and it must have frightened her a good deal and made her feel pretty sick but she went right on.

She told how, when she was 16, a certain boy had come, an older boy who Knew Things the other boys didn't know, and how he affected her so that she forgot everything else in the world. How she sneaked to meet him at night and went through school in a daze. Then one night, when she was quite beside herself, a Terrible Thing happened. She did not mince words when it came to that part. She told it in all its shocking, pitiful, vulgar details. How she stumbled home with her heart wild with terror—and the shame that came when the boy boasted all about it to the other boys. The awful ordeal of facing her mother and father and the principal—the cringing sickening years before she could live it down.

She didn't make a tragedy nor a sermon of it. She told it in a friendly, simple way as one girl would warn another. She made it plain that it had all been the natural outcome of her own feelings. Such feelings were perfectly normal and right, she said, but things like that were bound to happen if you didn't control them. And, now perhaps, it wouldn't be so hard for her daughter to tell her about her feelings, since she knew that her mother has gone through it all herself.

She rested the case there. She did not need to go any further. Her little girl's arms were around her neck and the gap between them bridged.

Eve Blamed—As Usual

"I WAS listening to the siren voice of my wife on the back seat and so didn't see the stop signal," explained Judge W. H. Scott, of Davis, Cal., as he imposed a sentence upon himself for traffic violation after having been detained.

Whether she be a "back-seat" driver or not, Eve generally gets the blame. There is something peculiar about women. You just have to listen to them.
